AIR FORCE TELLS NEW PROMOTION PLANS

The Air Force made available this week an official forecast of officer promotion plans for the year starting 1 July. It showed little change from the current fiscal year pace, with a total of 9115 advancements foreseen to the ranks of captain, major, lieutenant colonel and colonel.

The Air Force said it will make about 300 new colonels, 975 lieutenant colonels, 2060 majors and 5780 captains.

Hundreds Face FY '57 Army Retirement; Policy Will Hit Thousands By 1961

Hundreds of veteran Army Reserve officers—those with 20 years active Federal service, at least 10 of them in commissioned rank—face retirement during the fiscal year which begins 1 July.

A board was in session at the Pentagon this week reviewing the records of more than 1500 Reservists to determine the names of the limited numbers who will be retained on active duty.

Most will be retired as the Army implements a vitalization program for its officer corps.

By the early 1960's, this vitalization program will affect thousands of Reserve officers, namely those who were commissioned during the pre-WWII emergency or during the early years of the war.

Because this group will be considerably younger than those now being considered, the likelihood appears that larger numbers will be retained on active duty, though much will depend, of course, on what happens to Army manpower strength.

The group now under consideration for retirement or retention are mainly majors and lieutenant colonels, although there are also a number of captains—mostly enlisted men who were commissioned during combat.

House Group O.K.'s $95 Million Benefits Expands Family Care; Doctor Pay Rises

Early House approval of the Family Medical Care and Medical Career Incentives bills was forecast this week as the Armed Services Committee approved both measures and sent them to the floor.

The two plans are designed to improve medical care for military families and to bolster the sagging ranks of the medical and dental corps.

Together, they will cost approximately $95 million.

"Escalator" pay increases for military doctors won the Committee's green light. The present $100 special pay for physicians and dentists at the end of three years will be increased to $150 per month; at the end of six years to $200, and at the end of 10 years to $250.

In addition, an average increase of $50 per month will go to Service doctors as a result of added longevity credit. In some instances, this amount will be as much as $76.

Thus, a maximum pay increase of $2,712 per year is possible.

The increased pay scales are designed to put Service doctors on a near par with their contemporaries in Civil Service and Veterans Administration jobs.

Subcommittee Chairman Paul J. Kilday (D-Tex.) who reported the two bills to the full Committee, said he is "hopeful" the medical career incentive plan "will attract and hold more medical men and reduce the doctor draft."

The family MediCare plan, as previ-

Creepy-Peepy Teamed With Handy-Talkie, Will Keep Commanders On Battlefield Beam

The Army's intensive drive to provide new communications equipment for atomic battlefield requirements moved ahead this week with disclosure of the versatile Creepy-Peepy hand-held television camera, with its portable transmitter.

The device was built to Army Signal Corps specifications by the Radio Corporation of America.

(THE JOURNAL of 14 Jan. published a special report on Army Communications by Maj. Gen. Emil Lenzner, USA, who commands the Electronics Proving Ground at Ft. Huachuca, Ariz.)

The Creepy-Peepy which will permit a soldier-scout to send battle pictures to his command post, was developed by the Army Signal Corps Engineering Laboratories at Ft. Monmouth, N. J.

The camera weighs only eight pounds. The transmitter, or sending station,

Family Welfare, Jobs, Money At Stake For Service Retired

A JOURNAL compilation of legislative action which affects persons on the retired lists of the Armed Services shows that these senior servicemen have a big stake on Capitol Hill during the next few months.

Legislation is pending which will affect the medical care they and their families receive. Other proposals will have an effect on job opportunities.

Income tax savings are a possibility for some retired persons.

For a detailed report on retired matters in the present legislative scene, turn to Page 21.

CREEPY-PEEPY—Carrying a 47-pound TV transmitter on his back and an 8-pound hand-held TV camera, this soldier-scout (Pvt. Craig Heatley) sends live video pictures back to his command post. Pictures up to a mile away can be picked up and transmitted. The portable TV was developed by the Signal Corps Engineering Laboratories, Ft. Monmouth, N. J.

The Journal Sights The Week In National Defense

THE IMPACT OF MISSILES, both guided and ballistic, continued this week, as has been the case all year, to demand consideration at the Pentagon, on Capitol Hill and in the Nation's press. It was significant that both the House Appropriations Committee and Senate Armed Services Committee moved quickly to obtain security clearance for closed-door testimony on missiles by top Defense officials and then made these statements public immediately. On the back page of this issue are highlights of missile statements and an illuminating report on missiles made by Dr. Walter R. Dornberger, a former German major general missile expert and now advisor to the Bell Aircraft Co., in an address before the Aviation Writers Association in Washington, D. C.

AN EARLY YEAR CRACKDOWN on release of information about missiles has been eased throughout the Services, though careful security measures are being maintained to prevent premature disclosure of data. Thus, the Army was able this week to show a group of newsmen its operation at Redstone Arsenal, Ala., where work is being pushed on the 200-300 mile range Redstone missile. Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, USA, assigned from the Pentagon to head the new Army Ballistic Missile Agency there, emphasized that current tests with the Redstone will hasten the achievement of an intermediate range (1500 mile) missile. For the first time, photographs were released of the Redstone and the Air Force's Snark. These are published on the back page of this issue, and there is comment on missile problems in the Memo to JOURNAL Readers on Page 12.

ARMY MISSILE PROGRESS reflected in the establishment of General Medaris' new command at Redstone this week had a counterpart development in the Air Force as General E. W. Rawlings, USAF, head of the Air Materiel Command at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, announced formation, effective 15 March, of a new Office of Deputy Director for Ballistic Missiles in the Directorate of Procurement and Production, with headquarters in Los Angeles, Calif. Its first chief will be Brig. Gen. Ben I. Funk, USAF, now AMC's Assistant for Programming. His staff will include the Special Aircraft Project Office set up late last year at Inglewood, Calif.

TACTICAL UTILIZATION of missile units will be increased when the Army's 601st FA Missile Bn. (Corporal) leaves in the near future for overseas from Ft. Bliss, Tex. Lt. Col. Edward J. McGrane, USA, who holds an M.S. in Electrical Engineering from the University of Pennsylvania, has just taken command of the missile unit.

IN ADDITION TO CONTINUING with budget testimony, legislators at the Capitol were busy this week with other vital military legislation, highlighted by House Armed Services Committee action on $95 million worth of bills to improve family medical care and increase attractiveness of service for physicians and dentists. These are described in detail on the next page. It can be expected that Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.), and Subcommittee Chairman Paul Kilday (D-Tex.) will press for an early vote on these two measures.

THE PENTAGON IS HOPEFUL that with the medical legislation out of the way, the House Armed Services Committee will find it possible during March to open hearings on another proposal advanced by the President in January statements to Congress. He stated that the proportion of Regular officers should be increased and legislation which would add thousands of Regulars to the Army and Air Force has been sent to Congress. Another recommendation made by the President and certain to be pushed by Defense Secretary Wilson and his associates would authorize reduced rentals for thousands of military families occupying substandard quarters.

CONGRESSIONAL RECEPTION of legislative requests made by the Pentagon generally has been favorable this year, with the House Armed Services Committee moving along at a rapid pace. The Senate Committee has not yet moved into high gear in handling specific bills, preferring first to take a broad look at the defense picture. It can be expected, however, that the Senate Committee, under Chairman Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) will take expeditious action on measures advocated by Pentagon chiefs. The Senate Finance Committee could be more of a problem, for it has yet to schedule hearings on the House-passed Survivor Benefits Bill.

AS POINTED OUT in last week's issue of THE JOURNAL, the deadline for the automatic $160 per month Social Security wage credit for military personnel is 1 April. The Defense Department hopes that before that date the Senate will have passed the Survivor Benefits Bill. This puts all Servicemen under permanent Social Security coverage, with deductions and credits according to rank. If necessary, a new extension of the present stop-gap coverage will be asked.

ANOTHER DEADLINE which is causing increasing concern in the Services is the expiration on 1 Jan. 1957 of authority for Army and Air Force retirements in the highest grade. There is no doubt that unless Congress extends this privilege, hundreds, if not thousands, of early retirements will be asked. The Defense Department wants prolonged authority for highest-rank retirements. It's possible that the Armed Services Committees will want to put a limitation on this procedure—possibly three to five years—but it is inconceivable that Congress won't extend the authority beyond the end of this year. For a rundown on Capitol action this week affecting the Services, turn to Page 11.

HALF A MILLION Army men will come under command of General Willard G. Wyman, USA, when he takes over as head of the Continental Army Command on 1 March at Ft. Monroe, Va. Moving up from Deputy CONARC Commander, General Wyman replaces General John E. Dahlquist, USA, who retires on 29 Feb. after a notable career of more than 39 years' service. In his new post, General Wyman, left, will work closely with Lt. Gen. Clyde D. Eddleman, USA, right, who is Deputy Chief of Staff for Military Operations. Formerly Army Field Forces, the Continental Army Command is responsible for troops in the United States and supervises the six ZI Armies and the Military District of Washington. General Wyman, who will be 58 next month, came to Monroe from duty as Commanding General of the Sixth Army at the Presidio of San Francisco. He was confirmed for four-star rank late last week in a list of 97 nominations, published on Page 5 of this issue. General Dahlquist was approved for four-star rank on the retired list.

ANOTHER SENIOR GENERAL who retires at the end of February is Lt. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, USA, Second Army Commander at Ft. Meade, Md., who will be succeeded by Lt. Gen. Charles E. Hart, USA, who has been a Corps Commander in Europe.

THE MIGHTY CARRIER FORRESTAL and the USS Boston, the world's first guided missile cruiser, will attract dramatic publicity in mid-March when a group of newsmen go aboard in Caribbean waters to watch flight operations and the firing of a Terrier missile. The Navy's newest destroyer, the USS Sherman, also will participate in the tests. From the Forrestal comes word that Capt. John A. Wollmers, USAF, has become the first Air Force officer to make a catapulted takeoff and landing in a jet fighter (FJ3 Fury) aboard the 60,000 ton ship.

CATAPULT LAUNCHING research and development will be enhanced by construction of a $15 million test center at the Naval Air Station, Lakehurst, N. J., expected to be completed in about two years; it's pointed out that steam catapults such as used aboard the Forrestal create enough power to throw an automobile more than a mile high. Another step forward for Naval Aviation has been taken with the installation of a remotely controlled closed circuit T.V. system for aircraft traffic control at the Alameda, Calif., NAS, in which three cameras relay pictures to three 12-inch monitors in the control tower, circumventing the blocked view from intervening buildings.

THERE'S MUCH ELSE DOING on the military research and development front, and some of it is quite high level. Involved in lofty diplomatic problems as a result of global balloon flights, the Air Force now is off on new sky research. The Cambridge, Mass., Research Center (subject of a special report in THE JOURNAL 4 Feb.) has awarded a contract to two University of Pennsylvania scientists for study on the relationship of upper-air winds to stellar scintillation—a fancy term for STAR TWINKLING; aim is to find out if winds can be measured by reading starlight. . . . Back on earth, the Army announced 22 Feb. development by Bendix Aviation Corp. of a Fountain Pen Dosimeter (officially Radiometer IM-93) which is clipped to the pocket like a pen or clinical thermometer and permits quick detection of DEADLY GAMMA RADIATION; ready for mass production for use by military and civilian defense authorities, the new device is described in detail on Page 26. . . .

MORALE AND MANPOWER: THE JOURNAL continues in this issue (Page 22) its inquiry into the problem of how morale and welfare of military families is affected by current manpower shortages in critical areas. During recent weeks, articles have analyzed the impact of reduced medical and dental staffs on care of Servicemen and their families. In the 4 Feb. issue, a three-Service investigation showed that hundreds of additional nurses are required; this article pointed up also how inequitable promotion opportunities are hurting Nurse Corps recruitment and retention. Today, the Chaplain problem is discussed.

Next Week—

Global deployment of the U. S. Army necessitates some "drastic" changes in logistics policies, states Maj. Gen. F. J. Brown, USA, in an article prepared for next week's issue of THE JOURNAL. Special Assistant for Parts and Maintenance to Lt. Gen. Carter B. Magruder, USA, Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics, General Brown writes on "A Twentieth Century Supply System For Today's Army." He tells of important tests to be held this summer.

Army Retirements

five colonels, is studying the records of the 20 year Reservists who are eligible for retirement under Title II of Public Law 810. This review is automatic under current Army policies and will be conducted annually.

Pentagon officials said this week that officers to be retired can count on at least six months notice.

It was emphasized that only the records of those who would be eligible to retire in fiscal '57 are being reviewed. Army spokesmen stressed that persons who hold category agreements which expire after fiscal '57 will be allowed to serve on active duty until the expiration of the contract.

Present plans call for officers to be notified during March as to whether they will be retired or retained on active duty.

An officer may be retained beyond 20 years if he is (1) outstanding, (2) a critical specialist, or (3) is needed within the requirements of the Army's rank and grade structure.

Officers chosen as "outstanding" can expect to be kept on active duty for considerable periods if their performance remains on the same level and if the Army is not forced to cut its manpower. Thus, if he is not required to retire by other provisions, such as age in grade, an officer designated as "outstanding" can look forward to serving up to 28 years if in the rank of lieutenant colonel or to 30 as a colonel.

The Army has stated that officers selected for release may choose, if otherwise eligible, to reenlist for active duty in an enlisted status in order to accumulate additional retirement credits before retirement.

If they remain active in the Reserve during such service, they add to their longevity credits and remain eligible for promotion to a higher permanent grade. Thus they may be able eventually to retire at a higher commissioned grade upon release from active duty.

USAF Plans To End All Flying At Bolling Field

The Air Force plans to shift all Bolling AFB, Washington, D. C., flying operations to Andrews AFB, Md., according to Brig. Gen. Ralph E. Koon, USAF.

The General told a Senate Commerce Subcommittee, headed by Senator A. S. Monroney (D-Okla.) that Bolling was "just getting outdated." He said another factor in the decision to close Bolling's runways was increased congestion at the Washington National Airport which is located across the Potomac River.

He told the Committee that the Air Force had not yet decided when planes would cease to operate from Bolling.

The plan does not mean that Bolling will be deactivated.

On the contrary, more homes and offices for Air Force officers and men will be utilized. General Koon pointed out that an installation located at Ft. Myer, Va., will have to be transferred to Bolling because of expansion of Arlington National Cemetery.

He voiced opposition to the Commerce Department's recommendation that Andrews AFB be used jointly by military and civilian planes. Andrews, he said, will be operating at full capacity even after completion of a proposed new runway.

The Air Force plans to ask for funds for a new runway in the 1958 budget.

Engineer Generals Get Key Assignments

Lt. Gen. S. D. Sturgis, Jr., USA, Chief of Engineers, has named Brig. Gen. David H. Tulley, USA, for the two-star post as Commanding General of The Engineer Center and Ft. Belvoir, Va., effective 1 May.

General Tulley, 56, will replace Maj. Gen. Louis W. Prentiss, USA, 56, who will retire at the end of April after 35 years service.

At the same time, General Sturgis designated Brig. Gen. Walter K. Wilson, Jr., USA, 49, Commanding General of the 18th Engineer Brigade at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., to replace General Tulley as Assistant Chief of Engineers for Military Construction.

In turn, General Wilson will be succeeded at Wood by Brig. Gen. John H. Dudley, USA, 48 returning from duty as VII Corps Engineer in Europe.

Commenting on the assignment changes, General Sturgis said:

"General Tulley's outstanding experience in various military assignments, and his proved native talents as an officer and as a leader, particularly qualify him to undertake at this time the command of our important Fort Belvoir installation. His broad military experience, including WW II service as Assistant Engineer of the Third Army in Europe, insures continuation of the high standards of training that have become traditional at Ft. Belvoir. General Tulley is thoroughly aware of the new requirements imposed upon the Army and its Corps of Engineers by the nuclear age. He can be counted upon to carry out the missions assigned to him at Ft. Belvoir with effectiveness and distinction."

"I am fortunate to have General Wilson as General Tulley's successor as Assistant Chief of Engineers for Military Construction. In all of his military career, and particularly in his outstanding work in North Africa, he has displayed the kind of ability and leadership required for direction of the difficult military construction missions the Corps of Engineers is called on to perform for the Army and the Air Force."

"In General Dudley we have a fine choice as Commanding General for the 18th Engineer Brigade. His ability as an Engineer Troop Commander was conclusively demonstrated in his successful construction of many airbases from New Guinea to the Philippines under my command as 6th Army Engineer. He is still a young general, with a brilliant record of military service behind him and promise of outstanding contributions ahead."

Gen. Dudley

Here Are Details Of Family MediCare And Physician-Dentist Career Bills

FAMILY CARE

In approving the MediCare bill this week, the House Armed Services Committee authorized an improved "uniform program of medical care" for military families.

The measure is "an important factor in the creation and maintenance of high morale throughout the uniformed services because it assures such personnel at home and overseas that the medical care of their dependents is being provided," the Committee said.

Here are the details of the proposal as it went to the House floor, showing medical care which will be provided in civilian facilities, care which will continue to be provided in military facilities, and a definition of dependents:

In Civilian Facilities

The Defense Secretary is authorized to contract for medical care of wives and dependent children of Servicemen under an insurance, medical service, or health plan which will include but not be restricted to the following:

- Hospitalization in semiprivate accommodations for a maximum of 365 days for each admission, including all necessary services and supplies furnished by the hospital during inpatient confinement.

- Medical and surgical care incident to a period of hospitalization.

- Complete obstetrical and maternity service, including prenatal and postnatal care.

- The required services of a physician or surgeon prior to and following hospitalization for a bodily injury or for a surgical operation.

- Diagnostic tests and procedures, including laboratory and X-ray examinations, accomplished or recommended by a physician incident to hospitalization.

Dependents will pay the first $25 of the expenses in civilian hospitals for each admission.

Dependents may elect, however, to receive medical care in either a military hospital or in the facilities provided for under the insurance plan. Except that the right to such election may be limited under SecDef regulations for dependents residing in areas where the member concerned is assigned to a post or installation where adequate Service or Public Health facilities are available for such dependents.

Retired Members

In order to improve the availability of medical care for retired members and their dependents, and for other dependents of active duty members (parents, etc.), the Defense Secretary is authorized to contract for a second insurance, medical service or health plan.

The extent of the medical care to be provided under this plan and the retired members and dependents to be included will be prescribed by Pentagon regulations approved by the President.

Families Outside U.S.

To improve MediCare for dependents of members outside the continental U.S., where Service medical facilities are not available, the Defense Secretary may contract for medical care for such dependents with acceptable local medical sources, or under an insurance plan.

Other Provisions

The Pentagon also is authorized to issue regulations prescribing medical and dental care in Service hospitals for Servicemen on active duty, those ordered to active duty for training, and for retired personnel (except those retired under Title III).

Retired career personnel, with 30 or more years' service, are assured medical and dental care by the military subject only to space and facilities.

Retired enlisted men of the Army and AF are authorized the same ration allowance prescribed for Regulars when hospitalized in a Federal hospital.

Further Benefit

Where an insured dependent or retired member requires hospitalization beyond the 365-day maximum provided in the bill, he may be transferred to a Service medical facility for continued hospitalization. Or, if he cannot be moved, the expenses of the additional hospitalization in a civilian facility will be paid by the Government.

In Military Hospitals

Dependents of both active and retired personnel will be given medical care in military hospitals and medical facilities when they request such care, subject to the availability of beds, doctors, and so forth.

Dependents may enter any Army, Navy, Air Force or Public Health Service hospital or medical facility regardless of their own Service affiliation.

The bill authorizes the Defense Secretary to establish uniform charges for any subsistence given dependents in connection with such medical care.

He also is authorized to impose uniform minimal charges for outpatient care provided through Service facilities when such charges are determined necessary.

Medical care in military hospitals and medical facilities will be limited to diagnosis, treatment of acute medical and surgical conditions, treatment of contagious diseases, immunization, and maternity and infant care.

Hospitalization in military facilities is not authorized (unless so provided by Pentagon regulation) for the following: (1) domiciliary care and chronic diseases;

(2) nervous and mental disorders (except for diagnostic purposes); and (3) elective medical and surgical treatments.

Dental care at military facilities will be provided only in cases of emergency to relieve pain and suffering or as a necessary adjunct to medical or surgical treatment. Such care will not include permanent restorative work or dental prosthesis.

Dental care is authorized, however, for dependents outside the continental U.S., or in remote areas within the U.S. where adequate civilian dental facilities are not available.

Military ambulance service will not be provided dependents except in acute emergency.

Home calls by military physicians are not authorized except in special cases where it is determined by the cognizant physician to be medically necessary.

Nor will military facilities provide dependents with prosthetic devices, hearing aids, orthopedic footwear and spectacles, except outside the continental U.S. and at remote stations within the continental U.S. where adequate civilian facilities are not available. In the latter case, dependents will be furnished such items at cost if they are available in Government stocks.

Definition of Dependent

The act defines dependents of male or female members or retired members of the uniformed services as follows:

1—His lawful wife; her lawful husband if dependent on her for over half his support.

2—His or her unmarried legitimate children under 21 or unmarried children over 21 who are incapable of self-support because of mental or physical defects and who are dependent on the member for over half of their support.

3—His or her dependent children over 21 who are duly enrolled in a full-time course of study in an institution of higher learning as approved by the Defense Secretary.

4—The term "children" in addition to the member's own or lawfully adopted children, includes stepchildren.

5—The male member's or female member's parents and parents-in-law if in fact dependent on the member for over half of their support.

6—His unmarried widow and children (as previously defined); her widower if at the time of the member's death he was dependent on her for over half of his support, and her children as previously defined.

MEDICAL CAREERS

Physicians and dentists will be given increased constructive credit, better promotion opportunities, and increases in both basic and special pay under the terms of the Medical Career Incentives Bill which was approved and sent to the House floor this week by the Armed Services Committee.

Here is what the act provides:

Service Credit

Doctors of medicine and doctors of dentistry appointed under the act will be credited for purposes of determining lineal position, permanent grade, position on a promotion list, seniority in permanent grade and eligibility for promotion with at least the following amount of service:

1—A doctor of medicine or doctor of dentistry appointed under the act upon graduation from medical or dental school may not be credited with less than four years' service.

2—A doctor of medicine appointed under the act who has completed a one-year internship, or the equivalent, may not be credited with less than five years' service.

The Secretaries of each Service are authorized to convene boards to review the records and compute the service of each medical and dental officer appointed under earlier laws (including Reserve or temporary officers who are on active duty on the date of the act or who enter on active duty after that date) in order to

CAMPAIGN HATS FOR SHARPSHOOTERS

Members of the Army Rifle and Pistol Team have been authorized to wear the old style Army campaign hat. The famed headgear was adopted in 1908 and used continuously for more than 30 years until just before WW II. Until 1954 there was no permanent U. S. Army Rifle and Pistol Team, but for the most part a group of teams separated by branch of service. With the formation of one Army squadron, all branches combined into one team.

Army Order Eliminates Training Division Title

The Army will discontinue use of division designations to identify training centers.

The 69th Infantry Division at Ft. Dix, N. J., 5th Armored Division at Camp Chaffee, Ark., and the 6th Armored Division at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., will be inactivated. These locations will be re-named respectively:

President Names 33 For General Ranks; Three New Brigadiers, Two From '33

THE Senate Armed Services Committee is expected to give early approval to President Eisenhower's nomination of 33 Army officers for general officer ranks. The new appointments include nine temporary major generals and three temporary brigadier generals—two of them with basic date of rank from 1933.

The following list shows the age, basic year of service and present assignment of the officers named by the President this week.

about family hospitalization?

Turn your problems over to your own, non-profit organization, the Armed Forces Medical Aid Association. For only $8 a month ($5.50 if you don't have children) you get top-notch benefits whenever your dependents are confined to a hospital, whether civilian or government facilities.

Surgery by a civilian doctor, for example, can go as high as $300, and there are benefits for everything from ambulance to miscellaneous. Write today for an application—before you need it.

THE BIG STORY

Less than two million days have passed since man's first crude attempt to correlate his thinking and his knowledge with a new science of symbols and hieroglyphics.

And communication is still one of our most undeveloped sciences.

Today, something of great importance is happening at Martin in the technology of communication. It is a new method of harnessing and efficiently utilizing engineering mindpower for the solution of previously impossible design and development problems.

This new operational concept now holds the key to countless closed doors beyond which lie the "impossible" achievements of tomorrow.

Already the Martin concept is revising the calendar and the cost on top-rated projects in the most advanced areas of flight systems development. And the next frontier is space itself.

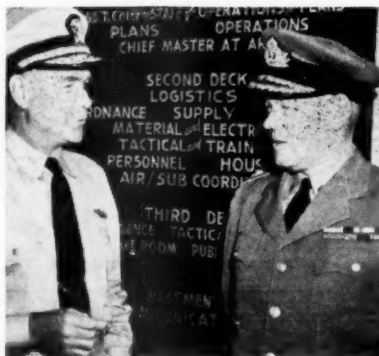

It is a big story.

Come to Martin if you are interested.

Revamp Navy Line Ranks, Cut Specialties; Fewer Admirals To Sit On Selection Boards

The Navy is getting set to revamp its restricted and unrestricted line ranks and to permit greater use of junior officers on selection boards.

EDO, AEDO and SDO officers, in ranks below captain, are authorized to transfer to the unrestricted line by legislation which has been sent to the Capitol.

In addition, the proposal abolishes three SDO categories, creates one new one and increases ceilings on some restricted line ranks.

Fewer admirals would have to sit on selection boards if Congress approves the new selection rules.

Under the terms of the proposal, Navy officers designated for engineering duty, aeronautical engineering duty or special duty, and supply duty officers in the Marine Corps, may, at their own request and if qualified under SecNav regulations, be reassigned as unrestricted line officers. To qualify for such transfer they must be serving in grades below captain (colonel in the Marine Corps), must have served not more than five years under their designation, and must not have been advanced more than one grade while serving under their designation.

The plan abolishes psychology, photography and hydrography as special duty categories.

Officers currently assigned to these specialties would be given a chance to be selected for reassignment to straight line duties. If their permanent status when first appointed as officers was enlisted and they have 10 years active duty, they may apply for reassignment as LDOs.

The proposal adds aerology to the SDO categories. Provision is made for present AEDO officers, who are found qualified in aerology, to be redesignated as specialists in aerology. Or, if the officer is qualified and makes application, he may be reassigned as an unrestricted line officer.

Present limitations on the total number of restricted line officers of the Navy who may serve in the combined grades of captain, commander and lieutenant commander are increased. At present, EDOs in those grades are restricted to nine per cent of the total number of unrestricted line officers; AEDOs and SDOs are restricted to five per cent each. These percentages are raised to 10 and 5.5 per cent respectively.

The Navy said the present percentages

NEW WAIST PLATE FOR MARINE M/SERGEANTS

Marine Corps Master Sergeants are going to get a new waist plate for wear with the dress blue uniform.

The new belt buckle is similar to that which has been in use for the past 10 years, but was redesigned by the Uniform Board to make it conform with the Marine Corps seal. The eagle and the USMC emblem have been made to stand out in bolder relief. In addition, the gold-plated device has been given a better finish.

It will be some time, however, before the redesigned buckle hits the field, since the Corps has not yet let production contracts.

Navy Wants O.K. To Transfer Nurses; Studies Continue On Promotion Law

The Pentagon has asked Congress for legislation to transfer some Regular and Reserve Navy Nurses—mostly in the rank of lieutenant—to the Navy Medical Service Corps.

The reason: The Navy has been utilizing a number of registered nurses with specialized training in billets as dietitians, physical therapists and occupational therapists.

But the Defense Department has directed that training and use of nurses in these specialties be discontinued. They must be used instead in nursing assignments.

A number of nurses filling jobs in the above mentioned specialties prefer, however, to remain in that type of work rather than perform general nursing duties. The Navy says that unless it receives authority for their transfer to the MSC, many will resign.

Present law prohibits appointment of women in the MSC above the grade of lieutenant (jg) and they must not be over 32 years of age.

At the Pentagon, studies are continuing on legislation looking to improved promotion opportunities for Army, Navy and Air Force nurses, particularly to the rank of major (lieutenant commander) and above.

THE JOURNAL revealed in an article in the 4 Feb. issue how Service nurses are handicapped in promotion advancement because of legal restrictions.

This results in a situation in which many nurses find themselves years behind other officers, both men and women, in reaching field officer grades.

Defense Department officials say that a legislative request to liberalize nurse promotions is likely to reach Capitol Hill in the near future. President Eisenhower has stated that action is necessary to improve incentives for nurses, the same as is being done for physicians and dentists.

USMC Adds Two New Pistol Trophies To 1956 Competition-At-Arms Program

Two new awards—the Edson Pistol Trophy and the Holcomb Pistol Trophy—have been added to the Marine Corps competition-at-arms program for 1956.

Starting with separate competitions on the East and West Coasts, the matches will evolve into all-Marine Corps and National contests.

The Western Division Match will be held at Camp Pendleton, Calif., 7-10 May and the Eastern Division Match at Camp Lejeune, N. C., 14-17 May.

The San Diego, Wharton and Holcomb Trophy Team Matches will take place at Camp Pendleton, 11-12 May. Shooters from large units will fire in the San Diego Match; those from small units will compete in the Wharton Match. The Holcomb Match is for pistol shooters from both large and small units.

On the East Coast, at Camp Lejeune, will be the Elliott, Wirgman and Edson Trophy Team Matches, to be fired 18-19 May. The Elliott and Wirgman Matches are for rifle shots and the Edson Match for pistol shooters.

The Marine Corps Rifle, Pistol and Lauchheimer Trophy Matches are slated for 4-7 June at Parris Island, S. C. Those who win honors in the Division Matches will be eligible for this competition.

The Marine with the highest aggregate rifle and pistol scores at the Marine Corps Match wins the Lauchheimer Trophy.

The Inter-Division Rifle and Pistol

Matches will be conducted at Parris Island on 8-9 June. Those who were awarded badges in the Eastern and Western Matches will compete for coastal supremacy.

Marine Corps Rifle and Pistol Team members selected by the Team Captain or by the Commandant's representative will be sent to the National Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, 14-18 Sept.

The National Matches bring together the top military and civilian shooters of the Country.

Further details are contained in Marine Corps Memorandum 4-56.

Pens Book Telling Story Of "Passage To Freedom"

Lt. Thomas A. Dooley, III, MC, USNR, has written a book, "Deliver Us From Evil," which tells the story of the Navy's "Passage to Freedom."

The book has been purchased by the Reader's Digest and will be published as the April Book Condensation of the Month. The regular volume, with a foreword by Admiral Arleigh A. Burke, Chief of Naval Operations, is slated for publication at the end of March.

Lieutenant Dooley was one of a handful of Americans stationed in Haiphong, a small free zone in Communist North Viet Nam, when the mass exodus to freedom began in August 1954.

Navy Appoints 8 CPO's To W-1; 2 Waves On List

The Navy has named eight CPO's for appointment to the temporary rank of warrant officer, W-1.

Included in the list are two WAVES—Chief Yeoman Madeline F. Corsiglia and Theresa Leone—who, upon acceptance of their appointments, bring the total of all women warrants on active duty to seven, and the number of women W-1's to three.

Others on the list are: William A. Berglund, Leonard J. Dalton, Landis Higgins, Jr., Charles A. Miles, Irving C. Nielsen, and Ellis E. Austin.

Navy Names Members Of LDO Selection Bd.

The Navy has released the names of officers serving on the board to choose all categories of officers for the LDO Program.

Examinations were given to those recommended by commanding officers on 10 Oct. 1955. The board is considering 1,582 applicants. Last year's board selected 194 for LDO ranks.

Senior member of the board which met on 7 Feb. is Capt. O. L. Livdahl, USN.

Other members are: Commanders H. E. Surface, W. R. McClintick, T. E. Barnett, CEC; J. C. Houghton, H. E. Schmidt, W. D. Dietz, B. A. Rhoades, SC, W. H. Burns, and J. W. Trumbo; Lieutenant Commanders R. N. Vehorn, L. T. Chesnut, CEC, J. B. Griffin, W. Koone, W. E. Reed, P. St. Jerne, E. R. Jenks, K. S. Dick, T. C. Gavett, D. P. Appleby, SC, Q. R. Schulz, and G. W. Colonel Bowman relieved Col. Roy L. Kline, USMC, as Director of the Junior School, MCS, Quantico. Colonel Kline moved into the slot vacated by Colonel Condon.

that USAA has long been the choice of the Armed Forces

Organized 34 years ago to provide low-cost automobile insurance for officers and warrant officers of the armed forces, United Services Automobile Association is a non-profit organization under the management of active and retired service officers.

The policy of insuring only preferred risks, plus responsible management, has provided substantial savings and has made USAA truly the choice of the services.

In 1955 over seven million dollars of dividends were paid in the states to 262,161 members, amounting to an average saving of 44% of the standard manual premiums on automobiles.

Wherever you serve, USAA can serve you. Claims are settled rapidly, also—even in the most remote places.

Give yourself the most responsible protection for the least cost. Just fill in coupon, mail and be insured today—with USAA.

Gen. Selser's Bombing Wins CANCO Award

Maj. Gen. James C. Selser, jr., USAF, Deputy Commander of the Eighth Air Force, has been presented the CANCO award for outstanding work while taking the Commander's Radar Bombing Familiarization Course at Mather AFB, Calif. General Selser recorded the highest score ever made in the mock bombing runs at the end of the course, and also received the highest grading for this classroom work during the week-long instructions. The first general officer to receive the CANCO award, General Selser was presented the trophy by Col. Sam Maddux, jr., USAF, commander of Mather AFB.

The award is donated by the American Can Co. of Sacramento, Calif.—major target on the bombing run.

More Pats On Back Is ARDC Objective

The Air Research and Development Command plans to give greater recognition to its airmen who accomplish outstanding aerial feats under emergency conditions.

Specifically, the ARDC has in mind superior aerial performances by airmen in minimizing or averting aircraft accidents in dangerous situations.

Too often, ARDC feels, airmen who deserve to be commended do not submit adequate reports on their feats because of modesty and the feeling that they are "just doing their jobs." In view of this, the method for reporting such actions has been simplified. It is hoped this will result in additional reporting on the part of airmen involved in hazardous aerial experiences.

MATS Passengers Get Cheaper Insurance, It's A Result Of Fine Safety Record

Passengers traveling aboard MATS aircraft will benefit from reduced travel insurance rates, Lt. Gen. Joseph Smith, USAF, MATS Commander, has announced.

Lt. Gen. Smith

A new agreement has just been signed with the Mutual of Omaha, reflecting MATS' fatality rate of only 1.27 per 100,000,000 passenger miles in overseas operations—comparable with U. S. commercial airlines.

A minimum $12,500 policy can be purchased for 50 cents under terms of the new agreement, the cost of insurance coverage depends upon the destination of the MATS plane. If the plane travels in Zone A—including the Continental U. S., the Canal Zone, Hawaii, Alaska, Central America and the West Indies—the minimum coverage is $12,500 for 50 cents. Additional insurance can be bought to provide a maximum $50,000 coverage for $2.

The same plans hold for the other three zones with the initial cost higher.

In Zone B—South America, Iceland and Greenland—the minimum cost is $1 for a $12,500 policy.

The minimum cost for a Zone C—

England, Scotland, Ireland, Europe and Istanbul—is $2.

In Zone D—the rest of the world—the minimum cost is $4.

Previously, $5,000, $10,000 and $20,000 policies could be purchased for specific amounts of time. A $5,000 policy, for example, cost $1 for three days, $3 for 10 days, $4 for one month, $5 for two months, $6.50 for three months, and $12.50 for a year. The price of coverage for greater amounts was scaled to the same periods of time.

Under the old plan a $20,000 policy cost $50 for a year.

As at most commercial airports, the insurance will be available at MATS terminals throughout the system. Authorized agents will handle applications at most MATS bases, while machines are being installed at some installations so that passengers may quickly fill in the required forms.

Since MATS carries many military families, as well as officials of the United States and other governments, the revised insurance has been negotiated with the needs of these and other passengers in mind.

Negotiations for the new insurance were initiated by MATS Traffic Division under Capt. John D. Stevens, USN (USAF), and were conducted by Mr. Arthur C. Cox, insurance specialist of the Air Materiel Command, Wright-Patterson AFB, Dayton, Ohio.

Central Air Defense Force Marks 5th Year; Joins All Services In Protecting Half of U. S.

The Central Air Defense Force, created five years ago with a cadre of 15 officers and men, has grown into an organization of 18,000 military and civilian personnel responsible for the air defense of approximately half of the land area of the United States.

The CADF, now headquartered at Grandview AFB, Mo., which recently was designated a permanent Air Force installation, observes its fifth anniversary this week.

Maj. Gen. Jarred V. Crabb, USAF, Commander of CADF, commented on the occasion by tracing the growth and development of CADF and charting its future expansion. He added:

"The future will see even greater development as the SAGE electronic system and the most advanced type of all-weather fighter interceptor aircraft and armament come into operational use."

CADF is now composed of an extensive system of radar stations, fighter interceptor squadrons, aircraft control and warning squadrons and filter centers.

Construction of new bases at Minot and Grand Forks, N. D., and Glasgow, Mont., are high priority projects in CADF. When completed, they will add substantially to the defense capability of the so-called "high line" of the nation. CADF comprises 19 states from, roughly, the Mississippi River on the east to the Rocky Mountains on the west.

Expansion and improvement of CADF installations at Minneapolis-St. Paul, Duluth, Grandview and Sioux City are other important projects planned for the future. Also contemplated is an enlargement of the network of radar installations covering the Midwest. General Crabb pointed out the development of the Ground Observer Corps program and the recruitment of thousands of civilian volunteers to man observation posts and Filter Centers are other important CADF objectives.

But in looking over the past five years, General Crabb observed two highlights of CADF accomplishments: the complete conversion of CADF combat air-

MATS Merges Units To Form Safety Office

MATS has merged its ground and flying safety divisions to form a new staff agency, the Office of Safety.

Headed by Col. Willis E. Beightol, USAF, former MATS Chief of Flying Safety, the Office of Safety is composed of three divisions, Flying Safety, Ground Safety and the Safety Publication and Research Division.

MATS is the fourth major USAF command headquarters to unite its safety operations. As a policy-making agency, the Office of Safety will encourage MATS field units to follow similar actions to combine their safety offices. This has already been effected at Andrews AFB, Washington, D. C.

Service Club Director

Awarded ARS Plaque

SAC's service club director, Miss Nina K. Binder, was presented an annual American Recreation Society Plaque recently by General Curtis E. LeMay at command headquarters Offutt AFB, Nebr.

The Armed Forces section of the ARS voted Miss Binder the award for her 12 years of outstanding military recreation service.

Miss Binder spent seven years as a supervisor with the American Red Cross and Special Services, and five years developing and organizing an active service club program while with Far East Air Forces. She came to SAC last February.

craft from conventional aircraft to rocket-equipped jets, and the achievements of the CADF Standardization and Tactical Evaluation Team.

Composed of topnotch combat veterans, the team flies intercept missions on the wing tip of squadron aircraft to test the combat readiness and flying proficiency of key pilots.

The tests are conducted under the most difficult flying conditions under simulated air defense combat situations. Flying and training techniques developed by the team, plus the "know how" acquired by the younger pilots from the veterans, have been invaluable in the CADF training program.

The importance of the Army and Navy in the mission of CADF and the creation of the Joint Central Air Defense Force in 1954 was also emphasized by General Crabb. The Central Anti-aircraft Regional Command, under the command of Col. L. J. Staub, USA, is a component of the Joint Central Air Defense Force. Comdr. Jack Evans, USN, is the Navy Deputy on the joint staff of General Crabb. Brig. Gen. Edward W. Suarez is the Vice Commander of CADF.

The first CADF commander was Maj. Gen. George R. Acheson, who was succeeded in Feb., 1953, by Maj. Gen. Delmar T. Spivey. General Crabb assumed command in July, 1954.

The five air divisions of CADF are: 20th Air Division, Grandview AFB, Mo., under the command of Brig. Gen. Clifford H. Rees; 29th Air Division, Malmstrom AFB, Mont., under command of Brig. Gen. James O. Guthrie; 31st Air Division, Snelling AF Station, Minn., under command of Brig. Gen. William A. Matheny; 33d Air Division, Tinker AFB, Okla., under command of Brig. Gen. William P. "Cowhand" Mayor Aids Homeless AF Captain

Air Force Secretary Donald A. Quarles, speaking last week at a San Angelo, Tex., Chamber of Commerce meeting at Goodfellow AFB, Tex., told a story of how a local citizen had helped an Air Force officer in an unusual way. We liked the story and pass it along to our readers, as related by Mr. Quarles—

"Not so long ago, an Air Force captain, a pilot decorated for service in combat, was assigned to Goodfellow to instruct aviation cadets. He arrived with his wife. They spent several days searching without success for a place to live. One afternoon they returned to the hotel. The discouraged Captain sounded off in the lobby about his troubles.

"An individual in dusty boots and levis jotted down an address where, he said, the Captain and his wife might be able to stay until they found a place of their own. Doubtful, but willing to track down any lead, they hailed a taxi and gave the driver the address. He drove them up a long winding drive to an impressive residence.

"To the servant who opened the door, the Captain apologetically explained that some cowhand had referred him there. While he was talking, the lady of the house appeared. Yes, she said, they had a guest house they didn't use too often. How long would they like to stay?

"Only long enough to find a place to live, the Captain said. They stayed there for three months, until they found just what they wanted. When they left, the owner, who turned out to be that dusty cowhand, wouldn't accept a cent in payment.

"I don't know where the Captain is today, but I'll guarantee that he did a better job of instructing cadets at Goodfellow because of that fine example of San Angelo hospitality. As for the cowhand, he's here tonight—your Mayor, Mr. M. D. Bryant."

Here's The Score On Dislocation Pay

Congress last year voted approval of legislation providing a Dislocation Allowance for military personnel on Permanent Change of Station. An important restriction states that the payment may be made only once in a fiscal year, except under special circumstances. The current issue of the official Air Force Personnel Newsletter gives details on the implementation of the allowance, which is applicable to all the Services.

THE provision for payment of a dislocation allowance to eligible military personnel, who on permanent change of station (PCS) move their dependents to a new station, is a major feature of the Career Incentive Act of 1955, Public Law 20, 84th Congress. The purpose of the dislocation allowance is to partially reimburse a member with dependents for the out-of-pocket expenses incurred in relocating his household upon a permanent change of station. It has the added effect of assisting the Air Force in its efforts to provide maximum stability for its military members by curbing frequency of movements. This is so because the law contains a proviso which denies the entitlement to more than one dislocation allowance in a fiscal year, unless the Secretary of the Air Force determines that the urgent needs of the service require more than one PCS for a member during that fiscal year and grants a waiver. Secretarial waivers are limited to those cases wherein it can be justified that no other actions can be taken other than a second move by the individuals concerned. (Blanket waivers are not granted.)

To & From School. Permanent changes of station to, from or between courses of instruction conducted at an installation of the uniformed services are excluded from computation. Thus, a move to and from a school conducted on a service installation does not exhaust the individual's entitlement to a PCS move with dislocation allowance for the fiscal year.

Unit Moves. Organizational PCS moves affect individuals in the unit the same as an individual move would. A move of an "intact" unit has the effect of exhausting each member's entitlement to a dislocation allowance for the FY in which the move is made. Therefore, for those members of the unit who previously had a PCS move during the FY, it would be necessary to secure individual Secretarial waivers in order for dislocation allowances to be paid.

Entry-Separation. Payment for dislocation allowance is not authorized for moves to initial Air Force stations upon entry into the service, nor for moves in connection with separation from the military establishment.

Recording INFO. The limitation on reassignment by reason of entitlement to a dislocation allowance and the effective date are entered in the individual's basic personnel record (DA Form 66 for officers, and AF Form 20—new revised Form 7—for enlisted personnel). The applicable allotment serial number, together with sufficient information to identify the PCS movement, are also included in the Special Order directing the assignment of an individual. The Special Order includes a notation of PCS and dislocation move, if applicable, and a statement as to whether the dislocation is payable for a school move, a move by Secretarial waiver, or other type. When applicable, the fund citations for both travel and the dislocation allowance are also included.

The Service Chaplain. It is unfortunate that too little recognition is generally given to the importance of Service chaplains to the well being and efficiency of the Armed Forces. If this were not so, the problems of shortages and overwork, as brought out in THE JOURNAL's survey reported on page 22 of this issue, would not exist.

The parents and families of youths entering the military services are freed of worry and put at ease largely to the extent that they have confidence that there will be religious and character guidance available to fulfill the spiritual wants, as well as medical care to look out for the physical needs of their loved ones.

Likewise, with the families of career officers and men—they look for and expect the Services to provide the same 24-hour-a-day religious ministrations they would have if members of a church in a civilian community. From their Service chaplain, they also look for the same leadership and character guidance for their young members as would be given in their home church.

Yet, in addition to performing all the functions of a civilian minister, priest or rabbi, the Service chaplain has many other duties. For example in peace times, both at home and abroad, he is important in building up good relations with the local civilian community. In war he goes under fire to help and comfort the fighting men. That he does this willingly and bravely is attested to by the fact that in the Army alone in World War II 2,260 individual decorations—including 18 Distinguished Service Crosses—were awarded to chaplains. In fact, the action of the four chaplains aboard the torpedoed SS Dorchester who gave their lifebelts to others while they died in the icy waters off Greenland has been honored as one of the bravest and most inspirational deeds of the war.

In 1950, a Committee on Religion and Welfare in the Armed Forces reported to President Truman that the Chaplains were doing "a highly commendable job" and urged that they be extended "fullest support." In light of today's problems, that support should take the form of a more liberal authorization for their numbers and for their help.

Rights for Retired. Still tied up in the Civil Service Commission is the study and report on the advisability of freeing retired Service officers and the U. S. Government from the legal shackles of the so-called dual compensation laws. Though liberalized in the last session of Congress to raise the restriction on combined retired and civil pay from $3,000 to $10,000 a year for some officers, the limit is still too low to be realistic, while other laws bar most qualified Regular officers entirely.

At the behest of the Budget Bureau, the Civil Service Commission undertook a complete re-study of the problem last year. Unofficial word was that the CSC task force assigned to the job came to the conclusion that virtually all of the restrictive laws should be repealed and the Commission be allowed to certify any qualified retired officer for government employment without regard to his retired pay (which, in fact, is something that he already has earned). Furthermore, this preliminary report was circulated to the secretaries of the military departments and to the Secretary of Treasury, for the Coast Guard. We understand that they concurred in the preliminary recommendations. All of this was settled some time ago and the final report has been on the desks of the Commissioners for months.

The House Subcommittee headed by Representative Paul Kilday (D-Tex) is also looking into this subject at the direction of Chairman Vinson (D-Ga). Undoubtedly they will not want to act until they have the recommendations of Why "Permanent" Rank?

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

It seems to me that we ought to seriously consider ridding ourselves of the fiction of "permanent" rank? It serves no useful purpose that I can see. It is outdated.

When an officer is considered for a rank commensurate with his abilities, why have the dead-weight of "permanent" rank to hold him back?

Retention of "permanent" ranks merely causes untold confusion. This was proved right after WW II when temporary promotions were being based on permanent rank, and subsequently completely reversed.

So, let's get the laws changed to eliminate this oxcart thinking.

"Livestock Homes"

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Each year, Congressional committees seem to discover a different area of the world where U.S. military families are forced to live under shattering conditions. I remember that about two years ago you published photographs of shameful housing conditions in Alaska. Then about a year later, there were some prize examples of shabby housing in Europe—complete with outside plumbing.

So it wasn't surprising to read in the 18 Feb. issue about family quarters that were not fit to house livestock being occupied by Navy families in Cuba.

It strikes me that with the new Capehart legislation and with the Surplus Commodity assistance this situation should be brought to an end, once and for all. Apparently, the Defense Department now is determined to push the housing effort. Let's hope so.

In the meantime, however, why can't Congress do something about reducing the rents for those of us who must occupy substandard quarters? We've heard about that proposal for years, but the rents haven't been cut yet.

What a combination—exorbitant rentals for quarters not fit for livestock!

HOPEFUL FOR HOMES

Academy Time

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

I have been reading with great interest the recent "Readers' Views" on the proposed bill to give longevity credit for time spent at the U. S. Military Academy. If I might pursue the point a bit further, I would like to present a situation that confronts a great many Academy graduates. In illustration I will use my own experience, but only because I feel that it generally follows the pattern of many West Pointers. I entered the Army in July 1943, I went to OCS in firms are more than just mechanical manufacturers for the Armed Services. They are, indeed, considerably more than that, for it is to these industries that the military looks for new ideas in design, development, management, and production. The superiority of the products of American industry was demonstrated in Korea where the North American Sabrejet outfought the vaunted Russian MiG to a ratio up to 18 to 1. Today we are getting such products as the Boeing KC-135 jet tanker-transport because that firm spent its own money in this pioneering effort. If the American system of private enterprise is to prove its merit in a cold or hot war we must not have a return to the pre-WW II smears of "munitions makers." Current curbs on profits, together with the system of renegotiation, are, in fact, considerably greater restrictions than are put against other manufacturers. Industry is a genuine and integral part of our Defense structure and should be treated as a partner rather than a culprit.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—To give the ground forces the constant advantage of aerial reconnaissance, present Army plans indicate that each Infantry Regiment will have its own liaison plane, pilot, and crew, the plane to be employed as the situation demands.

50 Years Ago—The Chief of Ordnance is preparing to issue the new type of rifle to the Army next month. About 100,000 of the rifles have been practically completed and all the troops in the United States will have them, according to recent plans, by 1 May.

90 Years Ago—The different bureaus of the War Department announce that, during the present month, nearly one hundred buildings, such as barracks, warehouses, etc., will be offered at public auction in the various States. Besides these sales, 12,700 pounds of corn, 18,000 grain sacks, and 2,700 pounds of Manila rope will be sold by the Quartermaster's Department. During the same period, the Ordnance Department proposes to offer at auction, at Harper's Ferry, several thousand Enfield rifles, carbines, cavalry swords, etc., besides a quantity of bridles, saddles and accouterments.

1944, and subsequently served as a second lieutenant for eight months prior to my admittance as a cadet at West Point in July 1945. Upon being sworn in as a cadet my commission was terminated. My attempts to remain in the reserve corps were disapproved. Four years later I graduated and my military career continued as a commissioned officer but for all intents and purposes my four years at the Academy constituted a break in service.

For contrast I must condense the career of a friend who is a regular Army officer. His experience is typical of many "Distinguished ROTC Graduates." He entered the army in the early part of 1943, served as an enlisted man during the war, and was discharged in the Fall of 1945. Instead of going to West Point he went to a state university upon discharge. He joined the enlisted reserves and maintained that status until he graduated. We both graduated the same month of the same year, however his date of rank goes back to December of the year before he graduated and all four years of his university time count toward longevity for pay and retirement purposes. There appears to be an inequality.

The bill before Congress will certainly alleviate this conflict.

The trend since World War II has been to pass military legislation aimed at benefiting certain special interest groups. Some day we can hope for a steady, long-range policy governing commissioned service.

A remedy might be to allow all men in college ROTC units and cadets at USMA the opportunity to join the reserves so that their school time might count with some equality.

Letter In Journal From Gen. Boatner Prompts "Uniforms For Greece"

FOURTH Army headquarters unofficially has initiated a "Uniforms for Greece" drive in answer to an appeal from Maj. Gen. H. L. Boatner, USA, former Fourth Army commander now serving as chief of the U.S. Army Advisory Group, Greece.

General Boatner, in a letter to the ARMY NAVY AIR FORCE JOURNAL (4 Feb.) stated that obsolete United States Army uniforms are "still very much in use by the Greek National Army."

defense ON CAPITOL HILL

SENIORITY IN NAVY medical and dental corps ranks will shift in some instances as a result of the new medical career bill. Added constructive service will make some officers junior to those to whom they are currently senior. The Navy had a provision included in the measure, however, which will prevent such inversions of rank in the grade of captain and above.

THE LONE DISSENTING VOTE by a House Armed Services Committee member on the family Medicare bill came from Representative Bob Wilson (R-Calif.). His complaint: The bill does not provide complete freedom of choice between military and civilian facilities. Congressman Wilson thinks dependents should be permitted to go to civilian hospitals if that is their preference, even though military facilities are available.

A SIMILAR PROPOSAL by the American Medical Association was introduced as an amendment to the Medicare bill but was defeated by a vote of 28-2. The reason: The cost of such a program could rise to astronomical figures and thus defeat the entire purpose of the legislation which is aimed principally at providing medical care for 40 per cent of the military dependents who currently are not able to obtain care in military facilities.

THREE-STAR RANK for the Surgeons General of the Army, Navy and Air Force was deferred this week by the House Armed Services Committee. Although included as a part of the Medical Career Incentive measure reported by the Kilday subcommittee, the proposal was dropped at the request of Chairman Vinson prior to approval by the full committee.

SPONSOR OF THE THREE-STAR PLAN, Representative Mendel L. Rivers (D-S.C.), said he has been assured by Mr. Vinson that the proposal will be taken up separately by the Kilday group. Congressman Rivers believes it is unfair for the top medical officers to continue to wear two stars when many of their subordinates hold the same rank.

SUPPORT FOR THE MOVE to enhance the prestige of the Surgeons General came from the American Medical Association and from Assistant Defense Secretary Dr. Frank B. Berry. An AMA spokesman said the Association considers such a step as "very important." Doctor Berry said of the plan: "I am entirely in favor of it."

THE MORALE OF LINE OFFICERS would not be affected significantly by the higher pay which will go to physicians and dentists, according to Assistant Defense Secretary Burgess. He told the committee he believes the Medicare bill has the support of the line. He said other officers recognize the long training which medical officers must take before they can be commissioned and they recognize that their own health needs and those of their dependents cannot be met unless something is done to bolster the medical corps.

CHANCES OF A SECOND PERESS CASE are not likely under the Army's new promotion policy for doctors. Peress, an Army dentist, was promoted to major during an administrative up-grading, despite the fact that unfavorable security information was in his file. Similar promotions now taking place are being handled with greater care. Maj. Gen. Silas B. Hays, Army Surgeon General, has told the Kilday Subcommittee, "We are reviewing all records to make sure we don't promote anyone who is a security risk."

RELIEF FROM DUAL COMPENSATION LAWS may be in store for retired Service doctors willing to come back to active duty. The Navy Surgeon General has written to Navy Secretary Thomas asking that steps be taken to remove the dual pay restriction. Admiral Hogan said he believes a substantial number of retired Navy doctors would be willing to return to active duty if they could retain the retired pay which they have earned. They could be utilized in many non-combat type billets, he said.

A COMPLETE REVISION of the dual pay laws is being held up, meanwhile, due to inaction by the United States Civil Service Commissioners. The Commission was directed to review the entire program and come up with legislative recommendations. These have long been completed, and concurred in by other interested departments, including the Pentagon, but the plan has been pigeon-holed by the Commissioners. Those interested in the proposal see little chance of its passage during the present Congress unless the Commission gets it to the Capitol within the next few weeks.

MILITARY FAMILY HOUSING PROBLEMS have created a conflict on Capitol Hill. The House and Senate Committees on Banking and Currency don't see eye to eye on the role played in the military housing program by the Federal Housing Administration.

"ARBITRARY" ACTIONS BY FHA have completely eliminated some military family housing which the Service Secretaries have certified is needed, the House Committee reported last week. Intimating that FHA should give the Services greater leeway in determining their own needs, the Committee reemphasized its belief that the program "is essentially and fundamentally a military one" directly affecting the security of the Nation.

OPPOSITION TO THIS VIEW was expressed by Senator John J. Sparkman (D-Ill.), chairman of the housing subcommittee on the Senate side. He cautioned FHA "that it is not required merely to rubber-stamp the demands of the military." He said "It is true the military can override the FHA under certain conditions, but that does not relieve the FHA from the responsibility of reporting its own estimate of what the need is."

DISPUTE OVER THE GUIDED MISSILE PROGRAM "points up the fact that the President and only the President can make certain essential decisions," Representative Thomas G. Abernethy (D-Mass.) has told the House. He said "It seems obvious that the Department of Defense has been able to make no decision with sufficient finality in this matter" and that the same appears "equally obvious" with reference to the National Security Council. The Congressman called on the President to weigh the facts and make a decision.

MEMO For Journal Readers

ALL THE SERVICES will hail AF Sec'y. Quarles' reasoned statement on guided missiles, (see back page) particularly his rejection of the claim that the ICBM is "the absolute weapon." Pentagon leaders have feared during recent weeks that the all-out attention which is being given to missiles on Capitol Hill, notably to the ICBM, threatened support for other programs. THE HIGH ESTEEM in which Mr. Quarles is held and his earlier service as Assistant Defense Secretary for Research and Development will help assure an orderly R&D program.

THE MISSILE TESTIMONY of CofS Twining pointed up sharply a critical decision that lies ahead at the Pentagon. The General said there's no question about operational control of the ICBM; that's an Air Force job clearly. HE WAS LESS CERTAIN, however, about the Intermediate Range Missile. "We do not know who is going to handle it. We are all building it. As far as I know, the decision has not been made who is to be responsible for it." SECDEF WILSON HAS SAID that he will worry about the operational control problem at the proper time; first order of business will be to get the IRBM.

ARMY SEC'Y. BRUCKER, reporting to the Senate Armed Services Committee, on missile progress in his Service, put the problem of operational control in neat capsule form. "These missiles, in the final analysis, are artillery projectiles having extended range and accuracy," the Governor observed.

THE ADMINISTRATION'S PLAN to appoint thousands of Reserve officers, mostly in the Army and Air Force, for Regular commissions will be handicapped if the Senate continues to delay action on the Survivor Benefits Bill. Large numbers of Reserve officers will be discouraged from applying for Regular appointments under present law, which provides far greater Survivor Benefits for Reservists. THE AUGMENTATION BILL likely will be taken up by the House Armed Services Committee during March and extended testimony is foreseen. In the Senate, the Finance Committee still hasn't scheduled hearings on the House-passed Survivor Benefits measure.

FIFTEEN MILLION DOLLARS in reduced rentals may soon be voted for thousands of military families forced to occupy substandard quarters. Congressional sentiment for this measure, backed by the President, is growing. Many legislators are concerned because the Government is now in the position of "gouging" Service family tenants. STIFF QUESTIONING can be expected by Pentagon officials on one aspect of the problem; Armed Services Committee members will want assurance that authority for reduced rentals will not slacken the efforts to eliminate this type of housing entirely. They will surely insist on a time limit, which may be less than the four years proposed by the Defense Department.

SAC'S EMPHASIS ON FAMILY welfare was demonstrated to the Nation last Sunday as the NBC television feature, "Wide Wide World," presented a dramatic report on the bomber command. Great stress was placed on the achievements of SAC'S Dependents Assistance Program, organized and led by Mrs. Curtis E. LeMay. THERE'S NO QUESTION that this program has been one of the most important morale-building activities in the Services during the past several years. However, it is creating an understandable problem. THERE ARE MANY in the Air Force who contend that if a morale and welfare program proves greatly beneficial for one command, such as SAC, then it should be explored for possible across-the-board Air Force implementation and supervision.

THE SECOND SKIPPER of the USS Forrestal, the Navy's 60,000-ton carrier, will be Capt. William E. Ellis, USN, Commander, Operational Development Force, Norfolk, Va. He will replace—probably about 1 June—Capt. Roy Johnson, USN, who is on the flag officer selection list. Forrestal Class Captains are not likely to serve long tours aboard these vessels; the Navy will want to give a number of senior captains a chance at this crack command.

AN ARMY COLONEL, William R. Kintner, advisor to the Research Analysis Group of Johns Hopkins University, has won the top prize of $1200 in the Essay Contest sponsored by the U.S. Naval Institute. His article was on "American Responsibilities in the Nuclear Age." An $800 prize went to LCDr. Maurice H. Hellner, USNR, for a report on "Sea Power and the Struggle for Asia." He is now a civilian in the Office of Naval Intelligence.

RECREATION OFFICERS at military installations located nearby National Parks are certain to plan more organized tours this year for Armed Forces personnel. The reason: if Servicemen visit the parks in organized groups, they are admitted free of charge. But if they go as individuals, they must now pay the regular admission charge.

BUDGET BUREAU INTERFERENCE in carrying out military projects, asked by the Pentagon and approved by Congress, is provoking increasing criticism on Capitol Hill. Last week's Memo told of BoB holdups in construction of facilities for Reservists. A NEW INCIDENT has come to light during hearings on the Medicare Bill. Subcommittee Chairman Kilday, who happens to come from Texas, demanded to know what had happened to Pentagon plans, endorsed by Congress, for construction of a new Air Force School of Aviation Medicine in the Lone Star State. Air Force officials were forced to admit that the Budget Bureau has refused to give the green light.

INTERSERVICE RAIDING for officers with outstanding skills will be barred in the new Pentagon legislation asking authority for an officer to transfer from one Service to another. It's stipulated that transfers will be made only after tripartite agreement, involving the two Service Secretaries and the individual, is obtained.

THE UNITED MINE WORKERS, opening a series of hospitals, are bidding high for Army, Navy and Air Force physicians, who are experienced in directing large health programs. Some military physicians have retired to take $25,000 per year positions with the UMW.

IT WILL TAKE SOME TIME for the Air Force to recover the goodwill that was lost when plans were announced—then rescinded—to abolish AFOTC units on about 20 campuses. Dr. Nils Y. Wessell of Tufts University at Medford, Mass., has advised USAF Headquarters that "considerable damage has been done to unit morale and general public relations . . ." He urges an annual "off-the-record" meeting between university and Air Force officials for "frank and open discussion" of problems. THE NUB OF THE PROBLEM is that the ROTC programs, shortly after the start of the Korean combat, were expanded to levels which now are producing a surplus of second lieutenants for active duty needs. ONE ANSWER is to assign thousands to Reserve units, which the Army is doing.

SERVICE FAMILY NOTES

AUCH SO—It was a true-to-life Parisian Sidewalk Cafe where members of the Officers' Club at Erding Air Station, Germany (APO 207, N. Y.) modeled the new year's Spring styles from a local merchant. Sporting crew haircuts and loud plaid jackets are Maj. Peter Wormwood, USA, and Mr. Gordon Kiefer, who express the men's approval of the lovely models. (Top Row:) Helen Lord, Lee White and Pat Stuckey. (Bottom Row:) Virginia Kiefer, Elaine Greenwood, Steffie Rulin and Lillian LeMay, who shows off French lace dress with slip to match.

MAJ. Gen. C. T. "Buck" Lanham, USA-Ret., who served as Chief of Information at SHAPE under General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, and now Vice President of the Penn-Texas Corporation, is building a home in Rolling Wood, Md., a suburb of Washington. General and Mrs. Lanham are residing at The Woodner until they move into their new home.

Engineer Officers' Wives Club—

The Engineer Officers' Wives Club of Washington will have a luncheon and fashion show, on 6 March, at 12:30 p.m., at the Ft. McNair Officers' Club, when the guests of honor will be Mrs. Maxwell D. Taylor, wife of the Army Chief of Staff; Mrs. Chester R. Davis, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Army; Mrs. Walter Weible, wife of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel; and Mrs. James M. Gavin, wife of the Chief of Research and Development.

A Washington store will present a fashion show following the luncheon.

Mrs. Herbert Donald, chairman for the affair, will be assisted by Mesdames Calvin C. Campbell, Paul Symbol, Joseph Dyer, Milton Miletich, John McElheny, Harry Howell, Walter A. Gray and John R. Davis.

QM Women's Club Tour OQMG—

Members of the Quartermaster Women's Club assembled at Gregory Hall on the morning of 16 Feb., for a conducted tour of the offices in which many of their husbands work. Under the guidance of Col. Leslie W. Allen, Lt. Col. Lloyd E. Hirschorn, Irvin A. Johnson, Bertil V. Jones and David M. Scott, Jr., the members were shown the achievements in Research and Development, which were explained by Col. William B. Jackson and his staff. Col. E. S. Ehlen and Lt. Col. C. W. Florance outlined the function of the Chart Room in the Executive Offices, after which the group gathered in the OQMG Conference Room to hear an address by the Quartermaster General, who was introduced by Col. M. C. Perry. General Hastings told of the new organizational changes and emphasized the importance of a wife's influence on her husband's work.

Following the tour, the members returned to Gregory Hall for a luncheon planned by Mesdames Van Lyde Graf, Hugh H. Almond, Victor P. Blair, Charles R. Borns, Robert E. Hascall, Ray J. Laux, Harold J. Crase, A. G. Hogland, John A. Kjellstrom, Dale Etka and Arnold C. Gilliam.

Mrs. Parks Gets Valentine—

Three hundred and fifty members of the Ft. Meade, Md., Officers' Wives' Club gathered on St. Valentine's Day to bid farewell to their honorary President, Mrs. Floyd L. Parks, wife of Lieutenant General Parks, USA. Second Army Commanding General. General Parks retires on 29 February.

In the receiving line were: Mrs. J. E. Allen, Luncheon Chairman; Miss Agnes Wark, friend of Mrs. Parks; Mrs. Parks; Mesdames J. B. Lindsey, wife of the Post Commander; C. S. Mudgett, hostess for the tea; A. W. Kellond, President; C. M. Baer, 1st Vice President; K. A. Cunin, 2d Vice President; C. D. Wiegand, Secretary, and A. H. Albert, Treasurer.

Mrs. Parks has been an active participant in the club and other organizational activities including the Protestant Women's Guild, the Choral Society and Red Cross.

Inside a huge, red, heart-shaped box, decorated with white ruffle, was the club's gift to Mrs. Parks, a pastel portrait of the General by the renowned Danish artist, Knue Hougart, who is presently residing in Arlington, Va.

In her farewell remarks, Mrs. Parks expressed her regret in leaving the Army, which has been her life for the 25 years of her marriage, and of leaving her many friends at Ft. Meade.

General and Mrs. Parks will reside at 3650 Upton Street, NW, Washington, D. C.

MANY THANKS

The Journal wishes to acknowledge the kind understanding of our readers who may have received subscription solicitation material during recent weeks.

In an effort to acquaint as many Service families as possible with our expanded editorial coverage and particularly with news of the new airlift deliveries to Europe, we have found it necessary to send out circulation letters without being able first to check our subscriber lists.

We counted on the understanding of The Journal family of readers and are pleased with their appreciation of our problem. Some have even told us how they passed along the information to their friends.

"Night In Paris" Success At Belvoir

■ FT. BELVOIR, VA. The late Mistinguett, turn-of-the-century darling of after-dark Moulin Rouge and the Latin Quarter, would have been in her element at Ft. Belvoir, Va., on the evening of 11 Feb., when members of the Officers' Wives Club recreated the sights and signs of Montmartre for their glittering "Night In Paris." Inside Woodlawn Hall, the transformation was a tour de force for the decorations committee, headed by Mrs. Camille H. DuVal and Mrs. Luther Cobb. Accenting the effect were a strutting accordionist and two talented artists, Lis. William Szaro and Robert Malerba, who did clever charcoal caricatures of the guests.

Members of the Club had planned the evening to entertain husbands and guests, but some of the husbands turned the tables on their hostesses, by providing the high spot of the entertainment. Mignon (Col. David W. Helman), Flifi (Col. Walter H. Parsons, Jr.), Colette (Col. Christian Hanburger), Yvonne (Col. Herbert G. Lux), Mimi (Lt. Col. William A. Moore) and Nanette (Capt. Gerald F. Geyer), in flamingo costumes, performed the most intricate and amazing Can-Can routine ever seen outside of the original Bal Tabarin. Enthusiastic applause greeted the charming chanteuse of the evening, Mrs. Alfred H. Victor.

Following the floor show, members and guests took over the dance floor to the music of Devron's Band and, at midnight, a gourmet supper was served.

Mrs. Samuel D. Sturgis, Jr., wife of the Army's Chief of Engineers, was the guest of Mrs. Louis W. Prentiss, wife of the Commanding General of The Engineer Center. The Assistant Commanding General of The Center, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Gerald E. Galloway, had as their guests Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Emerson C. Itschner, Brig. Gen. John F. Bird and Brig. Gen. Walter K. Wilson. The Chief of the Transportation Corps, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Paul F. Yount, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Evan M. Houseman, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Edmund C. E. Lasher and Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Richard Meyer were the guests of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Arthur Fillbrandt. The Deputy Provost Marshal General, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Howard M. Hobson were with Col. and Mrs. Myron Brewer.

Program chairman was Mrs. Jacques L. Sherman, Jr. Wives of The Engineer Center Staff were hostesses with Mrs. Arthur A. G. Kirchhoff as chairman of arrangements. Assisting her were Mesdames Galloway, publicity; Henry M. Salley, reservations; DuVal and Cobb, decorations; Edmonde B. Kelly, Eugene Romero and Sidney R. Crumpton, table decorations; John M. Frank and Brewer, entertainment; Robert W. Britten and Russel Edison, choreography; and Wil-

Deacons For USMA Chapel

■ WEST POINT, N. Y. The newly-elected Board of Deacons for the Post Chapel were installed during services on Sunday, 19 Feb.

Lt. Col. C. E. Covell, Assistant to the Dean of the Academic Board, was chosen Chairman, and M/Sgt. M. M. McDonald, Combat Arms Detachment, 1802d Special Regiment, will serve as Secretary. These Deacons replace Maj. L. C. Ecklon, Assistant Post Quartermaster, and Capt. L. E. Surut, Department of English, respectively, who served as the Board's first officers.

Chosen for a one-year term, the 31 Deacons will assist Chaplain C. A. Huffman in carrying out an active church program.

One of the major projects undertaken by the Board in 1955 was sponsoring a drive for funds that assisted in the restoration of the Pleasant Valley Methodist Church, which was damaged by the Connecticut floods. Other activities included aiding in youth programs, ushering at services, and sponsoring a three-day mission in the local area.

■ SMOKY HILL AFB, KANS. The February luncheon and business meeting of the Officers' Wives Club, saw Mrs. C. D. Gunn, president, introduce new board members. They are: First Vice-President, Mrs. E. C. Wayman; Second Vice-President, Mrs. Luther Burney; Ways and Means Chairman, Mrs. Richard Burgess; Club Arrangements Chairman, Mrs. Walter S. King; Flower and Notes Chairman, Mrs. Walter Galligan.

Welcomed At Sheppard

■ SHEPARD AFB, TEX. A newcomers coffee and a luncheon were held recently to entertain members of the NCO Wives Auxiliary. Honorees were Mesdames Oak Norton, Clyde Slaughter, Harlem Syke and Howard W. Asch.

Mrs. William Caffee and Mrs. Walter Ross served as hostesses.

The luncheon was held in conjunction with a business meeting. Hostesses were Mesdames Joseph Werner and Herbert A. Peterson. The invocation was given by Mrs. Kenneth Bryson.

Mrs. Leonard Robinson, auxiliary president, conducted the business meeting. Mrs. Johnny Morren read the revised constitution and it was then voted on by the auxiliary members.

New S-4 For V Corps Arty.

■ DAERMSTADT, GERMANY. Lt. Col. Marlon L. Ellison, USA, former Commander of the 18th FA Bn, has been transferred to V Corps Artillery as the S-4. In this capacity he succeeds Lt. Col. Richard Rowlands, USA, who has taken over the command of the 216th FA Bn.

Heidelberg Aids MoD

■ HEIDELBERG, GERMANY. The American Women's Club opened the 1956 season at the Casino with a March of Dimes Benefit. Guest speaker was Mrs. Charles E. Hart, wife of Lieutenant General Hart, Commanding V Corps. The program was followed by a tea and reception honoring Mrs. Hart, and Mrs. Anthony C. McAuliffe, Mrs. John F. Uncles, and Mrs. B. J. Schindler, honorary officers of the club.

The many activities of the organization include an art class, bridge, sports and travel groups, and a monthly orientation coffee to welcome the wives of all newly assigned personnel. Frequent sales of art works, needlecraft and other special items held at the Casino make available the funds necessary to maintain the extensive Welfare program of the club.

The regular meeting date is the first Wednesday of each month, and the wives of all American personnel, both military and civilian, are welcomed as members.

Women Officers' Luncheon

■ FT. GEORGE G. MEADE, MD. The monthly luncheons formerly held by the Women's Army Corps Officers here, have been reorganized to include representatives from other women's services. As a result of a ballot held last month, the name has been changed from WAC Officers' Luncheon to Women Officers' Luncheon.

Forty women, representing the Women's Army Corps, Army Nurse Corps, Army Medical Specialist Corps, Women in the Air Force and WAVE officers, met in the Bullard Lounge of the Officers' Open Mess for the first monthly luncheon under the new organization. Toastmistress for the affair was Lt. Col. Nora G. Springfield, Second Army WAC Staff Advisor.

RETIRED SERVICE NOTES

$500 Million Program To Benefit Retired Families; Bills Boost Income, Benefits

Legislation costing more than half a billion dollars will benefit scores of thousands of retired families if all military bills now pending on Capitol Hill are approved by the 84th Congress.

Already the Congress has passed and the President has signed into law a measure which will save retired military families more than $11 million annually in reduced taxes.

In addition, at least seven other important measures which spell added income or additional benefits for retired members and their dependents are before the Congress, and an eighth proposal is pending within the Executive branch.

Included in the proposals now at the Capitol (some of which were approved by either the House or Senate during the first session of the present Congress and are now before the other body for final action) give some retired officers higher rank on the retired rolls, boost retired pay, provide added benefits for survivors, and further reduce income taxes.

In addition, an administration proposal under study by the Civil Service Commission, pending submission to the Congress, gives retired officers greater opportunities to accept higher-salaried Government jobs without loss of their retired pay.

The $11 million saving previously mentioned was made possible by Public Law 398, signed by the President on 28 January 1956. It permits retired military personnel, regardless of age, to take a full tax credit of $1200 on their retired pay and to earn an equal amount from other sources. Those officers who are 72 or older may take the full tax credit regardless of other earnings. Complete details of the new tax cut were reported earlier (THE JOURNAL, 28 Jan.).

Here is a rundown of the pending legislation which provides increased income or benefits for retired Service families:

Family Medical Care

Under the terms of the Dependent Medical Care Bill (HR 9429), approved this week by the House Armed Services Committee, the Secretary of Defense is authorized to contract for a medical insurance or health plan to improve the availability of medical care for retired personnel and their families. The extent of the medical care to be provided in civilian hospitals under such plan, and the retired members and dependents to be included under the coverage, will be spelled out in Pentagon regulations after the Defense Department decides what type of insurance it can buy with available funds.

Continued medical treatment for retired families in military hospitals and facilities also is authorized by the $76 million plan, which gives special assurance to retired career personnel, with 30 or more years' service, that they will be given military medical care subject only to space and facilities.

Retired enlisted men of the Army and AF are authorized the same ration allowance prescribed for Regulars when hospitalized in military or other Federal hospitals.

Tax Cut

All amounts which are withheld from retired pay under the Uniformed Services Contingency Option Act of 1953 would be excluded from the income of those on the retired lists under the provisions of a bill (HR 8802) introduced by Rep. Burr P. Harrison (D-Va.). The measure would apply to tax years ending after the date of enactment of the bill and could mean savings of up to $700 for some retired officers.

Top Rank Retirement

Authority for retirement in the highest rank satisfactorily held is made permanent by S. 2134 and HR 8694, and retired pay is authorized to be based on the highest grade held. Officers who retired prior to 1 Aug. 1953 and who were penalized because they had completed more than 30 years' active service at the time of retirement are given benefits equivalent to those afforded officers retired subsequent to 1 Aug. 1953.

Personnel currently receiving retired pay computed on the basis of pay scales in effect prior to 1 Oct. 1949, and who receive advancement in grade under the new proposal are not entitled to receive retired pay computed on the basis of the increased pay scales of the Career Compensation Act, unless they have elected to come under the CCA. Retroactive accrual of retirement pay is prohibited. The measure will cost approximately $2-614,590.

Academy Credit

All periods of service as a cadet or midshipman at the U.S. Military Academy, U.S. Naval Academy, U.S. Air Force Academy and U.S. Coast Guard Academy are credited in the computation of basic pay under the terms of S. 1201 and HR 2213. The $7.7 million plan, which goes into effect on the first day of the month following Congressional approval, boosts the pay of those currently on the retired rolls, although no additional pay is authorized for periods prior to the effective date of the bill. The proposal limits the credit to the matter of pay alone; it does not provide the credit for promotion or retirement purposes. The full cost of the measure is $7,734,805.

Dual Pay

Legislation to ease dual pay restrictions has been drafted and is pending before the U.S. Civil Service Commission. All officers retired for age or longevity would benefit from the proposal which a Commission spokesman has said will "greatly liberalize" the restrictions on dual compensation. Last year, the Congress upped the dual-pay ceiling for those on the disability rolls, permitting them to accept Government employment and retain their retired pay provided the total income from both sources does not exceed $10,000. A Civil Service task force has urged that similar steps be taken for others on the retired lists. At present, the proposal has bogged down on the desks of the Civil Service Commissioners, and action this session appears unlikely unless steps are taken to break the measure loose.

Survivor Benefits

The $590 million survivor benefits bill gives added benefits to scores of retired personnel. If the death of a retired member is directly attributable to his service, the compensation paid to his widow under the terms of the bill will be $100 a month plus 15 per cent of the basic pay he would have been receiving if on active duty on the date of his death. If there is a minor child the widow will receive additional compensation from Social Security until the child reaches age 18. At age 65, the widow's compensation will be boosted by Old Age Survivor Insurance payments.

Present law provides that if an individual has contributed to Social Security for more than five years and subsequently becomes totally and permanently disabled, he is automatically insured for the rest of his life without making further contributions. The new proposal provides that retired personnel who become permanently and totally disabled as a result of military service "shall be deemed to have contributed for a period of five years," thus making them eligible for the automatic insurance privilege.

Retired personnel who retired since December 1950 and who cannot now count the gratuitous Social Security wage credits which they received while in Service, would be permitted to count such credits (from December 1950 until the date of their retirement) under the new measure.

Those retired in the future may collect

Use Retired To Aid Re-Ups, Says AF

The Air Force says the voluntary contribution that can be made by retired officers and airmen in aiding reenlistment programs "has not yet been fully explored."

The Pentagon reports that these people could suggest many new ideas and avenues of approach. Their potential value "is unlimited due to the wealth of experience gained through years of actual experience with Air Force problems," the current Air Force Personnel Newsletter declares.

Commanders are urged to take advantage of help from Air Force "alumni" in connection with reenlistment counseling, briefing sessions and Commanders' Hours.

They Keep Busy

ADMIRAL ROBERT B. CARNEY, USN-Ret., former Chief of Naval Operations, has turned over the Presidency of the U. S. Naval Institute, Annapolis, Md., to Admiral Arleigh Burke, USN, his successor as CNO. Under Admiral Carney's direction, the Institute reached a membership of 33,700—an all-time high.

LT. GEN. C. R. HUEBNER, USA-Ret., who heads the Society of the First Division, is directing a campaign to attract an estimated 250,000 men who have served in the Division since its organization in 1917. The Society's headquarters are at 5309 Germantown Avenue, Philadelphia 44, Pa.

LT. GEN. H. L. LARSEN, USA-Ret., Colorado Civil Defense Director, is playing a leading role in organizing a two-day meeting of State and Territorial Civil Defense Directors at Continental Air Defense Command Headquarters, Ent AFB, Colo., beginning 29 Feb.

CAPT. DAVID C. GAEDE, USN-Ret., who has ended a military career of more than 33 years—six in the Army—has accepted a position with the Central Inspection Board of the American Psychiatric Association. He and Mrs. Gaede will make their home in Washington, D. C.

BRIG. GEN. PAUL M. SELEEN, USA-Ret., associated with the Operations Research Corporation in New York City, and Mrs. Seleen now are residing at Hill House, 1225 Midland Avenue, Bronxville, N. Y.

both their retired pay and Social Security retirement benefits which they have earned. Under the Survivor Benefits measure, active duty personnel will contribute two per cent of their basic pay to Social Security funds, and will thus be able to claim the additional retirement benefit when they reach the age of 65.

The bill, HR 7089, was approved by the House last year and currently is pending before the Senate Finance Committee. It is expected to be taken up by that group next month.

USCG Retired Pay

Retired Coast Guard officers are authorized under the terms of S 1834 to use the commissioned grade authorized them by the law under which they retired in computing their retired pay. The bill passed the Senate last year and is pending before the House Armed Services Committee.

Medal of Honor Pensions

Increased monthly payments of $100 to Medal of Honor winners of all ages on the retired rolls is authorized by HR 735 which passed the House on 22 June 1955 and is now before the Senate Finance Committee.

Col. Wiley Ordered to C.Z.

Col. Norman H. Wiley, MC, USA, commander of the U. S. Army Hospital at Ft. Benning, Ga., since December 1953, will become supervisor of the Gorgas Hospital at Ancon, Canal Zone, in April.

GENERAL JOHN E. DAHLQUIST, USA, left, receives the Distinguished Service Medal at Ft. Benning at a parade commemorating his 39 years of active duty. Lt. Gen. Thomas F. Hickey, USA, Third Army commander at Fort McPherson, Ga., presents the medal on behalf of Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker. General Dahlquist retires 29 Feb. as head of the Continental Army Command at Ft. Monroe, Va.

Wright-Pat. Is Host To 11 Retired NCOs

Retired Air Force sergeants from a 100-mile radius of Wright-Patterson AFB, were honored guests at a luncheon there 7 Feb. Sponsored by The Personal Affairs Branch, it was presided over by Col. Paul L. Barton, USAF, Base Commander.

In following a policy set up by USAF recently, 11 former non-commissioned officers met here for a tour of the base and to be briefed on recent developments Air Force wide.

Coming from as far away as Newport, Ky., and points throughout Ohio, the visitors dined at the NCO Club, viewed an Air Force newsreel film and participated in an informal discussion before touring the Air Force Museum here.

They also visited the flight line area of Wright Air Development Center, and heard a talk by M/Sgt. Charles Bates, 3500th USAF Recruiting Wing.

Termed a success by Col. James A. Crehan, USAF, Director of Personnel and Base Services, this first joint meeting here of former top level servicemen and base officials will be followed periodically by other similar gatherings.

Gen. Simon Is Retired, But Keeps Plenty Active

Maj. Gen. Leslie E. Simon, USA-Ret., completed a distinguished active military career late last year as Assistant Chief of Ordnance.

Since that time, THE JOURNAL in various weeks has reported his appointment as Director of Research and Development for the Carborundum Company of Niagara Falls, N. Y., election as a Board Member and Director of the Gruen Precision Laboratories, Inc., and designation as a member of the Board of Trustees of the Illinois Institute of Technology in Chicago.

Now comes word that General Simon will serve on the Scientific Advisory Committee of the Ballistic Research Laboratories at the Army's Ordnance Proving Ground, Aberdeen, Md.

Tampa Retired Group Elects New Officers

The Retired Officers Association of Tampa, Fla., has installed new officers. They are:

President: Capt. R. E. Bassler, USN-Ret.

Vice Presidents:
Col. J. O. Tarbox, Inf., USA-Ret.
Col. B. M. Coffenburg, USMC-Ret.
Col. B. H. Merchant, USAF-Ret.

Col. M. W. Barron, Eng., USA-Ret.
Secretary: Maj. A. Pfefer, QMC, USA-Ret.

Chaplain Shortage Perils Health, Handicaps Ministry To Families In All Services

AN acute shortage of Chaplains coupled with constantly increasing workloads, is hurting morale and creating a serious health problem in the ranks of military clergymen.

Chaplain Chiefs report a number of Chaplains currently are on the sick list with heart trouble and related illnesses.

With uniformed clergymen "being pushed pretty hard," Chief of Air Force Chaplains Maj. Gen. Charles I. Carpenter, describes the attrition rate resulting from the heavy workload as "extraordinary high."

The Army Chaplain Corps, headed by Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Ryan, USA, reports that it has about a half dozen clerics laid up with heart ailments.

The Navy Chaplain Corps, under RAdm. Edward B. Harp, jr., ChC, USN, states that it has no current cases of heart trouble. As is the case with the other two Services, however, Navy Chaplains were said to be more susceptible to mental and physical exhaustion than many other categories of officers. This situation is due to the nature of their calling which demands that Chaplains be in almost constant contact with the sick, the dying and the dead, and with persons who have spiritual and mental problems.

Evidence of the tremendous demands upon the Chaplaincy is revealed by the number of duties they perform each year.

Latest available figures (fiscal year 1955 in the case of the Army and the Air Force and calendar year 1954 in the case of the Navy) show that Armed Forces Chaplains (attendance figures in parentheses): conducted 635,039 religious services (35,965,515); held 256,655 Bible and Sunday School classes (6,668,114); solemnized 19,247 marriages; performed 44,357 baptisms; and conducted 11,118 funeral services.

In addition, Chaplains made more than 250,000 visits to hospitals, contacting more than two million individuals.

These services are exclusive of the tens of thousands of community relations and other pastoral activities in which military clergymen participated during the same period.

On top of this, the three Armed Forces Chaplain Corps, for the past several years, have been engaged in the Character Guidance Program which calls for military clergymen to deliver weekly lectures to the troops. During the periods indicated above Chaplains delivered more than 185 thousand Character Guidance lectures before an audience of nearly 18.5 million.

Chaplain Harp, notes that during the past few months the number of lectures delivered has increased three times and that even greater numbers are expected to be made.

These impressive totals are particularly significant when related to the number of Chaplains who performed the services.

At present, the three Chaplain Corps are comprised of 3,114 officers.

Of this number, there are 1,230 active duty Army Chaplains, 826 in the Navy, and 1,088 in the Air Force.

Army Needs Chaplains

In the Army, the Chaplain Corps is made up of 922 active duty Reservists and 223 Regulars in the following ranks: one major general; one brigadier general; 49 colonels; 168 lieutenant colonels, 398 majors; 297 captains; and 317 first lieutenants.

The Army authorizes one, two, three, or four Chaplains for each unit depending upon its size.

The Table of Distribution sets up a restriction of one Chaplain to every 850 military personnel in organizations with a total strength of less than 2,500. In units between 2,500 and 4,500 in size, one Chaplain per 1,000 troops is allowed. If units are made up of more than 4,500 troops, the Army permits one Chaplain for each 1,500 officers and men.

Procurement is on the basis of one

Chaplain for each 950 troops. With the Corps at reduced strength, however, each Army Chaplain now is serving about 1,100 troops.

Unless some new authorization is granted, Chaplains will be called upon to serve larger and larger numbers of people as the total strength of the Army diminishes according to current end-strength plans.

Although AR 165-15 specifically charges the Army Chaplain Corps with the spiritual welfare of military families, there is no law or regulation on the books which grants authority for the procurement of additional military clergymen to do the job. This shortage is "felt very keenly" and "a solution is hoped for," an Army Chaplain stated.

The family care problem is especially critical in overseas areas where very little outside religious help is available. At present, there are about 120,000 dependents in Europe, 50,000 in the Far East, 20,000 in Alaska, and sizable numbers in Panama, Hawaii and other areas.

Six months ago, the three Chaplain organizations established the Unified Curriculum Program. The new program is designed to phase the religious training of military families so that as they are moved from one station to another, they are not required to repeat the same studies. The program is similar to that utilized by the school's systems.

Navy At 78% Strength

The Navy Chaplain Corps is comprised of two flag officers, 27 captains, 146 commanders, 209 lieutenant commanders, 244 lieutenants, and 222 lieutenants (jg)—a total of 826.

Operating with a shortage of about 200 officers, the Corps is required to cut back to 812 by 1 July.

Although Congressional legislation entitles the Navy Chaplain Corps one military chaplain to every 800 officers and men, the Bureau of Personnel, because of monetary considerations, has lowered the ratio even further, permitting only one cleric to each 1,100 Navy men.

Because of the BuPers restriction on Chaplain manpower levels, the Corps is manning its posts with only 78 percent of its authorized strength.

In Admiral Harp's opinion there would be little difficulty in obtaining more Chaplains if the ceiling were raised. He points out that his Corps has about 35 clergymen on the waiting list for commissions. "Hardly a day goes by," he told THE JOURNAL, "that we don't get a request."

The upshot of the strength limitation is that the Navy loses many opportunities to gain in the Chaplain Corps. Once a man is turned down, Admiral Harp pointed out, he is very unlikely to try a second time, feeling that his services really are not needed. When word gets around, others who may have been considering military service do not bother to put in applications at all.

The Chaplain Chief termed it "frustrating that we must say 'all billets are filled.'"

While the Chaplain Corps is able to "live with" the shortage, Admiral Harp stated that his organization "could provide a stronger ministry" in many areas if manpower levels were boosted.

He pointed specifically to the need for additional Chaplains at hospitals and receiving stations where normally there are particular morale problems.

At some Naval Hospitals there are not enough Chaplains to go around. Only four military clergymen are assigned to the U. S. Naval Hospital, San Diego, Calif., for example, where approximately 2,000 officers and men are undergoing treatment. In addition to ministering to military personnel, the four assigned Navy Chaplains give their attention to the needs of the hospital staff, civilian workers and military families in the area. Admiral Harp feels that there should be at least six clergymen assigned to duty in such concentrated areas.

He also cited the need for more contact with Navy men in overseas areas, specifically in Japan and Korea, where morale and morality problems are greater than in the United States.

If more Chaplains were available, the Navy could expand its Character Guidance Program to meet the situation, he said.

At the same time, he pointed out that his Corps is limited to one clergyman for each destroyer squadron—one to every eight ships. He has requested the Navy to grant permission for the assignment of one Chaplain to each DD division—one for every four ships.

As is the case with the Army, the Navy Chaplain Corps computes its strength on the overall strength of the Service, leaving out military families. If some consideration were given to authorizing Chaplains for military families, Admiral Harp points out that his Corps would be able to expand its Sunday School program and organize more community projects.

Air Force Also Short

The Air Force Chaplain Corps has authority for 1,211 military clergymen and an on-board strength of 1,088.

The active duty strength is made up of one major general, one brigadier general, 29 colonels, 318 lieutenant colonels, 318 majors, 253 captains, and 390 first lieutenants.

The 1,088 figure breaks down to 164 Regulars and 924 Reservists. General Carpenter points out, however, that most of the Reserve officers are serving indefinite extended active duty tours and are, for all practical purposes, "in to stay."

As is the case with the Army and the Navy, the Air Force Chaplaincy is hard pressed to meet its commitments in the area of family care. Because of the lack of outside help, General Carpenter makes it a policy to assure that all his overseas slots are filled before those in the States.

The cause of the shortage in the three Chaplain organizations is a debatable point.

While the Army and the Navy report that they could improve their situations following increased procurement authority, Chaplain Carpenter states that there is no point in asking for more Air Force Chaplains when it is impossible to find enough clergymen to fill present vacancies.

In his opinion, the current shortage is due to a Nationwide deficiency of clergymen. "Neither by law or by administration is the Air Force Chaplain Corps restricted," he said.

Problem May Ease

General Carpenter stated that he has no plans to ask for additional procurement authority because he feels that there is no point in bottling up billets which can be utilized by other essential branches of the Air Force.

He forecasts a gradual elimination of the shortage in the Armed Services Chaplaincy, pointing out that during the war years many young men were kept out of religious schools. The end of the war, he notes, freed many young men who are now able to enter seminaries. They will eventually ease the military Chaplain shortage. He stated that there are currently 80 clergymen on orders for duty in the Air Force Chaplain Corps.

Regardless of the reason for the shortage, it is apparent that some remedial action is necessary to ease the burdens carried by Armed Forces Chaplains. Workloads for the Chaplaincy have been piling up at a back-breaking rate as they have assumed responsibility for the spiritual guidance of thousands of military families. It is estimated that one half of the total workload of the Chaplaincy is absorbed by military families.

INDUSTRY IN DEFENSE

New Army Device Signals "Gamma Fever," Fountain Pen Dosimeter Costs Under $10

The Army is ready to put into mass production a new "Fountain Pen Dosimeter" for use in detecting deadly gamma radiation.

Developed by the Cincinnati division of the Bendix Aviation Corporation, the device has been perfected after extensive testing by the Signal Corps Engineering Laboratories at Ft. Monmouth, N. J.

Signal Corps engineers call it "far and away the best personal dosimeter for Army troops."

It will record gamma radiation up to 600 roentgens, which is the measure of gamma radiation absorption; over 100 will produce signs of radiation sickness; 400 will kill 50 per cent of those exposed.

The Army told these details of its new detection device in a 22 Feb. announcement.

The new Army Signal Corps dosimeter is clipped to the pocket like a pen or a clinical thermometer. It needs no delicate handling or special care, however. In tests it worked perfectly after being thrown 20 feet against a solid wall and dropped on a concrete floor.

It also operates after immersion in water and at high altitudes. It is unaffected for all practical purposes by arctic cold or desert heat.

THE NEW DETECTOR can be stored indefinitely before use, giving it a marked advantage over the commonly used photographic badge dosimeters. The latter deteriorate after long storage or exposure to abnormal heat. In condition, after its origin electric charge, the instrument can be used over and over again for years with infrequent recharge, while photographic emulsions, once developed, must be replaced.

The fountain pen dosimeter weighs just under two ounces, is about four and a half inches long and one-half inch thick, and is easily carried in pocket or purse.

Once the dosimeter is charged, it can be read at any time. The user merely peers through a lens in one end, with a light source at the other, as he might look through a pint-sized telescope. He then reads the amount of exposure on a highly visible scale.

The instrument uses a quartz filament fiber activated by an electrical charge stored in a special aluminum and plastic foil capacitor. As gamma rays ionize the air inside the filament chamber, the quartz fiber moves across the scale.

THE DOSIMETER'S CHARGER is powered by a flashlight battery and is slightly larger than a cigarette pack. A protruding contact on the charger is placed in one end of the dosimeter, and the instrument is charged.

A light in the charger allows the dosimeter to be adjusted, so that the scale can be returned to zero or show the reading previous to charging.

For emergency civil defense use, it also could be recharged by almost any trained television or radio repairman.

In quantity production, estimated cost of the fountain pen dosimeter is less than ten dollars, while the charger, good for any number of instruments, can be mass produced for about $20.

The idea of a fountain pen dosimeter is not new, but up until 1952 the present design was considered impracticable because of technical difficulties. In that year Bendix presented the Signal Corps Engineering Laboratories with an experimental model that seemed to overcome all major obstacles.

Increased Earnings Told

The Federal Services Finance Corporation, which handles accounts of thousands of military families, reports a net income after taxes of $267,045 during 1955, compared with $211,645 the previous year.

An official statement released this week shows that common shares paid $1.69, compared with $1.61 in 1954. More than $22 million in loans and discounts was acquired, an increase from the $18.8 million the previous year.

Col. Fitzgerald Named

Col. Herbert M. Fitzgerald, USA, has been named Director of Services for the Atlantic Transportation Terminal Command at Brooklyn, N. Y., commanded by Brig. Gen. James Glore, USA.

Prior to this assignment, he was Deputy Chief of Staff for Programs, both at ATTC and New York Port of Embarkation.

Creepy-Peepy Teams With Handy-Talkie

complete with built-in power supply, scales 47 pounds. An image equal to or better than commercial quality can be transmitted, the Army said in an announcement which permitted the additional details.

By carrying his own battery pack, the soldier using the new TV equipment is freed for the first time from cumbersome cable connections that heretofore harnessed him to a source of power and limited movement. Army Signal Corps cameramen can now reach previously inaccessible spots, moving through forests and hedgerows, over ditches and fording streams at will. When one mission is completed, the television scout is able to proceed to a new location, taking his electronic eye with him.

In addition to its many military benefits, Signal Corps officers point out that the lightweight transmitter-camera has several potential commercial uses. In the hands of a trained newspaperman or TV reporter, the Army's tactical camera could help cover fast-breaking stories such as fires recorded from roof tops, arrival of dignitaries at airports and aircraft wrecks on craggy mountainsides. The cable-less camera may also prove ideal for on-the-spot interviews of delegates at large meetings, such as presidential nominating conventions, or for sports events.

THE VOICE ACCOMPANYING the picture might be handled by the Signal Corps handy-talkie radio. In recent field tests at the Ft. Monmouth laboratories, the camera and radio paired efficiently as reconnaissance eyes and ears.

Pictures up to a mile distant can be picked up by the flat cigar-box shaped camera and sent to a receiver another half-mile away.

The camera has four interchangeable lenses, including a wide angle, to view a broad sector, and a telephoto lens for subjects at a great distance. It has a pistol grip to help steady the camera and "pan" the action.

The Army's camera may also be mounted on a tripod for unattended operation.

SURVEYING THE BATTLEFIELD it could serve as a silent sentry to watch a road and report enemy movement. It could cut heavy forward observer casualties by replacing such Artillery personnel in exposed positions. Likewise, the unmanned camera might be stationed in an area suspected of being radioactive, unaffected by gamma radiation which would endanger a soldier.

The sending station, which looks like a small suitcase, transmits pictures continuously for two hours. A five-cell rechargeable silver zinc battery, about one-third the size and weight of a car battery, is easily replaced in two minutes.

The TV receiver, with a ten-inch aluminum picture tube, is mounted in a jeep for fast mobility. In emergencies, it may also be used in a fox-hole.

The jeep's electrical system provides all needed power at the receiving point. Commercial power or regular household current also can be tapped.

Work with the new equipment indicates that it is possible to relay the televised picture from the jeep to higher headquarters or to "pipe" it into a commercial TV system.

TO PREVENT POSSIBLE INTERCEPTION of the television signal, the Signal Corps camera can also be used with cable between transmitter and receiver. With the power packaged in the transmitter, cable size is four times smaller than earlier models.

Push button controls at a jeep console permits personnel to monitor pictures taken by five cameramen in the field. A battlefield may be surveyed from different angles, just as commercial television stations cover baseball games.

This latest television combat aid was built to Army Signal Corps specifications by the Radio Corporation of America.

U. S. COAST GUARD

Secretary of The Treasury—George M. Humphrey
Commandant—Vice Adm. Alfred C. Richmond

COAST GUARD officials will strive to win restoration in the Senate of $1,750,000 cut from its budget by the House, which voted $200,250,000 for the year beginning 1 July.

Biggest concern is a slash of $900,000 in retired pay.

The FY '57 budget is $5,197,000 greater than that granted for 1956.

Here's a breakdown of the budget:

Operating Expenses—The Coast Guard asked for $165,350,000 and got approval for $164,850,000, a reduction of $500,000. Of this total about $690,000 will be used for increased civilian pay/costs. Other increases provide for the operation of 10 additional Loran stations, modernization of radar installations on ships, and the modernization of fixed wing planes and helicopters.

Acquisition, Construction and Improvements—For these purposes, the Coast Guard got approval for $7,400,000, $100,000 less than the amount sought. This is an increase of $400,000 over 1956.

Retired Pay—The recommended appropriation is for $24,500,000, a reduction of $900,000 in the estimates but an increase of $600,000 above the amount available in 1956. The increase over 1956 represents an anticipated increase of about 260 persons on the retired list.

Reserve Training—It is recommended that the Coast Guard be given $3,500,000 for this purpose. This is $250,000 less than the estimates and $97,000 more than the amount appropriated for 1956.

Promotion Exam Results

Results of the 9 January officer promotion examinations reveal that 4.5 per cent failed to make passing grades.

Of the 1,097 who took the tests, 49 flunked.

One of the stumbling blocks was Navigation II with nine percent—15 of 165—of the participating officers falling below the required level. Officers also experienced some difficulty with the Naval Machinery test with seven of 93 failing.

Two of eight SDO's went down on Shipboard Electrical Systems.

In addition, seven of 47 officers who took reexaminations did not pass and are permanently out of line for promotion.

Our Readers Praise Air Deliveries

A WARM reception has greeted THE JOURNAL's new system of flying its weekly issues across the Atlantic to speed up delivery to subscribers in Europe, United Kingdom and North Africa. The new plan puts THE JOURNAL in the hands of readers in those areas at just about the same time it reaches subscribers in many parts of the States. Following are excerpts from some of the many letters we have received welcoming the new JOURNAL Airlift:

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Thank you very much for your efforts in providing faster delivery service to the readers of THE JOURNAL in USAREUR. I feel this will be of considerable morale value to personnel of this command.

A. C. MCAULIFFE,
GENERAL, US ARMY,
C-IN-C, USAREUR

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Your interest in providing more timely delivery of THE JOURNAL to members of this command is greatly appreciated. Getting accurate, up-to-date service news is a continuing problem here in USAFE. The fact that your publication may now reach USAFE subscribers in the week of issue will help fill the news gap which we sometimes experience.

Your action is most commendable in providing this additional airlift service without increasing your subscription rates. Certainly this action is in keeping with THE JOURNAL's long and distinguished record of service to the American serviceman.

WILLIAM H. TURNER,
LT. GENERAL, USAF,
C-IN-C, US AIR FORCES IN EUROPE

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

I think the movement of THE JOURNAL by air freight to Europe will be of tremendous boon to the members of the 8th Infantry Division. We shall take steps to inform members of the 8th Infantry Division of this forward step by THE JOURNAL. I am sure that your action should have a favorable impact.

HAROLD K. JOHNSON,
BRIG. GENERAL, USA,
ASST. DIV. COMMANDER,
8TH INF. DIV., FT. CARSON, COLO.

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The success of your experiment with reference to the bulk Air Mail delivery overseas is clearly demonstrated by the speed with which the first edition has been received.

Your host of readers appreciate the persistence with which you pursued this concept in the face of many difficulties. THE JOURNAL affords the adult members of a family overseas so much interesting material about things back home that all the members feel lost without its prompt availability.

Congratulations and warm regards.

C. E. BYERS,
LT. GENERAL, US ARMY,
COMMANDANT, NATO DEFENSE COLLEGE

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

THE JOURNAL's continuous effort to serve an important need of the Services is clearly reflected by the initiative and far-sightedness of the new distribution system.

For years, THE JOURNAL has found its way to American service personnel in every far-flung part of the earth. Its faithful and accurate reporting has won for itself a warm spot in the hearts of millions of American servicemen.

May the coming years bring even greater achievements to the service spokesmen—THE JOURNAL.

COMMANDING VII CORPS
G. H. DECKER,
LT. GENERAL, USA,

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The system which you use to airlift THE JOURNAL to Europe will be of great service to all of us here.

I know that the ARMY NAVY AIR FORCE JOURNAL is rendering a fine service to military services in Europe.

Obituaries

Maj. Gen. Virgil L. Peterson, USA-Ret.

Burial services for Maj. Gen. Virgil L. Peterson, USA-Ret., who died at Walter Reed Army Hospital, Washington, D. C., on 15 Feb., were held at Arlington National Cemetery, on 17 Feb. He was 73 years old.

Born at Campbellsville, Ky., General Peterson was graduated from Centre College in the class of 1902, prior to his entering the U. S. Military Academy, from which he was graduated in 1908. He received his commission in the Corps of Engineers.

During WWI, General Peterson headed the training of Engineer officers at Camp Lee and Ft. Belvoir, Va. From 1940 to 1945, he held the office of Inspector General of the Army, the first Engineer officer to be named to that post in more than a century. Suffering a heart attack in 1945, he was retired from active duty and since then, had made adjust the service credited to each officer to reflect the service authorized to be credited to officers appointed under the new act.

When these adjustments are made, such officers will be given precedence for promotion purposes or advanced to a lineal position in accordance with their adjusted dates of rank.

No Navy officer, however, shall be given an adjusted date of rank in the grade of captain which is earlier than 1 July 1955. All officers of the Navy with the adjusted date of rank of 1 July 1955, in the grade of captain shall retain the precedence among themselves that they held on the date of enactment of the new act, and shall be junior to all other officers assigned that date of rank.

Promotions Planned

If, as a result of readjustment of service credit under the above provisions, an officer of the Army or Air Force is made eligible for promotion, he will be considered for promotion by the next selection board considering officers of his grade and category.

If a Navy officer, as a result of the readjustment of service credit, attains lineal position equivalent to an officer who is serving in the next higher grade, or who is on a promotion list to that grade, he may be promoted thereto on the recommendation of a special board and, except for the above restriction on captains, may be assigned to a lineal position in the higher grade appropriate to his adjusted service credit.

COMPARE NEW DR. PAY

Under new special pay scales approved this week by the House Armed Services Committee, military doctors will receive pay more nearly equivalent to that of their contemporaries in the Civil Service.

The following chart compares the new monthly pay of military physicians and dentists with that of the Civil Service physician and with specialists in the Veterans' Administration:

Years' Service	Military	Civil Service	V.A.
3		$ 725 to $ 839	—
(Capt.)	$722	$ 839 to $ 936	$ 936
6		$ 950 to $ 1025	—
(Maj.)	$851	$ 950 to $ 1075	$ 1075
10		$ 1060 to $ 1147	—
(Lt. Col.)	$996	$ 1060 to $ 1147	$ 1147

his home in Washington.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lucia Hunting Peterson of the Wyoming Apartments, 2202 Columbia Rd., N. W., Washington; and one sister, Mrs. J. B. Hubbard of Campbellsville.

Brig. Gen. Francis H. Oxx, USA-Ret.

Funeral services were held at Arlington National Cemetery, Washington, D. C., on 20 Feb., for Brig. Gen. Francis H. Oxx, USA-Ret., who died at his home at Frederick, Md., on 16 Feb. He was 57 years old.

A graduate of the U. S. Military Academy in the Class of 1920, General Oxx supervised military construction in North Africa, Italy and Greece during WWII. Following the war, he was named Deputy High Commissioner in Austria, in which capacity, he attended the Foreign Ministers Conferences in London and Moscow.

After his retirement from active duty in 1952 for physical disability, General Oxx became Administrative Manager for the Ralph M. Parsons Co., which was operating a biological warfare laboratory at Ft. Detrick, Md.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Marie Louise V. Oxx; and four daughters, Mrs. Gerald M. Fregoe, Mrs. Eric B. Coursen, Mrs. Harold J. Machle, 2d, and Miss Katherine Oxx.

Brig. Gen. Edward J. Kendrick, MC, USAF

Brig. Gen. Edward J. Kendrick, MC, USAF, Commandant of the Air Force School of Aviation Medicine, who died at his quarters at Randolph AFB, Tex., on 17 Feb., was buried at Arlington National Cemetery, Washington, D. C., on 23 Feb. He was 56 years old.

Physicians and dentists may be temporarily promoted to the grade of captain in the Army or Air Force, or lieutenant in the Navy, at any time after one year after completion of medical or dental school.

An officer of the Medical Corps or Dental Corps of the Navy appointed in the grade of Lt. (jg) will be assigned as his running mate the junior line officer in the grade of Lt. (jg) with the same date of rank, or if there is none, the junior line officer of that grade with the next earlier date of rank.

The amount of constructive credit assigned to physicians and dentists under the terms of the act will be counted for longevity purposes in the determination of basic pay.

However, service authorized to be credited to an officer under this clause will be reduced by the amount of any service otherwise credited which covers any part of the period of the officer's professional education or internship, and the added service credit will not be included in establishing eligibility for voluntary or involuntary retirement or separation from the service.

Special Pay

The special pay for physicians and dentists is increased as follows:

1—$100 per month for each month of active service for officers who have not completed three years of active service.

2—$150 per month for each month of active service for officers who have completed at least three years of active service.

3—$200 per month for each month of active service for officers who have completed at least six years of active service.

4—$250 per month for each month of active service for officers who have completed at least 10 years of active service.

Medical Care

ously reported in THE JOURNAL, and as further detailed in this issue, provides continued medical treatment at Service hospitals for military dependents and establishes a premium-free insurance program for added care in civilian hospitals and facilities when needed.

For each admission to a civilian hospital, the family member is required to pay $25 of the total cost. This provision is designed to prevent abuse of the program.

The estimated $76 million cost of the medical insurance will be paid by the Government.

A graduate of Northwestern University, where he received his Medical degree in 1922, General Kendrick entered the Army Medical Corps in 1930, later becoming a leader in the development of equipment for the protection of flyers of high performance jet planes. Throughout WWII, he served with distinction as Surgeon of the Ninth Air Force, participating in the campaigns of Italy, Normandy and Germany.

Following the war, General Kendrick served as Chief of the Aero Medical Laboratory at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, for three years. Prior to becoming Commandant of the Air Force's School of Aviation Medicine, he served as Director of Medical Staffing and Education, Office of the Air Force Surgeon General. He was a member of the American Medical Association, the Aero Medical Association and the Michigan State Society of Medicine.

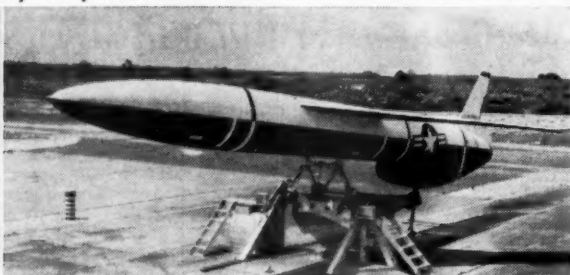

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Wanda Hunt Kendrick; one sister, Mrs. Carl Eckert of Alpena, Mich.; and one brother, Mr. Ralph Kendrick of Marquette, Mich.

Maj. Leo G. Heffernan, USAF-Ret.

Funeral services were held at his birthplace, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., on 15 Feb., for Maj. Leo G. Heffernan, USAF-Ret., air pioneer, who died of a heart attack, on 9 Feb., in Los Angeles.

Following his graduation from the U. S. Military Academy in 1911, Major Heffernan was assigned to the Cavalry, but four years later, his boyhood ambition was fulfilled when he was transferred to the Aviation Section of the Army Signal Corps, an insignificant branch in 1915, composing the Nation's air arm. It then consisted of 20 fragile wood and fabric planes and even fewer pilots. Major Heffernan won his pilot's wings after less than 40 flying hours. As General of the LONG RANGE MISSILES. The Defense Department this week released the first photographs of these Army and Air Force missiles. At the left is the Army's Redstone guided missile in flight into the stratosphere during a recent Ordnance Corps test. It was developed at the Army's Redstone Arsenal and is now one of the projects of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency. Above is the Air Force's Northrop SM-62 Snark long range strategic missile which is undergoing tests at the Air Force Missile Test Center, Patrick AFB, Fla.

ICBM Will Not Replace Manned Planes Says Missile Expert

The United States must, and will, develop an intercontinental ballistic missile, but "there is no substitute for the reasoning power of man," according to Dr. Walter R. Dornberger, wartime commander of the German rocket center at Peenemunde and now guided missile specialist for Bell Aircraft at Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Dornberger, a key figure in the development of the German V-1 and V-2 missiles, pointed out that ballistic missiles are devastating (a thermonuclear warhead would have a dispersal of a radius of 10 miles), but they also have weaknesses. Once the button is pressed and the weapon launched, it is on its own—no further control over it can be exercised, he said. A leak in a small pipe could upset all calculations, he contended, adding that an operational accuracy of 75 per cent would be logical to expect. This might mean, he declared, that 25 per cent of the missiles could land in neutral territory.

Thus, the former German major general contended, it is logical to assume that we must continue to have, or will be forced to return to, manned aircraft for more perfect control and accuracy.

In this view, Dr. Dornberger was in agreement with Air Force Secretary Donald A. Quarles who, in testimony just released, told Congress that both he and the Chief of Staff, General Nathan F. Twining, do not foresee a situation where manned aircraft will be replaced to a major degree by missiles.

"The nearer you can bring the intelligence of man to the point where you want to apply power," Secretary Quarles said, "the better off you are. If you are barred by the enemy from bringing that intelligence right up to the nearest point, then you back off and use a robot substitute for man. But it is always a compromise situation and one that would make you tend to retain as long as you possibly could the manned weapons with the advantage of man's intelligence."

Dr. Dornberger, who spoke 21 Feb. before a Washington group of the Aviation Writers Association, further declared that within five or six years defensive weapons will make "sitting ducks" of any type of guided missiles or manned aircraft travelling in the atmosphere at speeds of up to Mach 4 and altitudes up to 100,000 feet. In that area, he said, it appears that the defense will overcome the offense. However, missiles travelling outside of the atmosphere at speeds up to Mach 22 or 23 will offer a much more difficult problem than the former group—but nevertheless subject eventually to solution.

The missile expert urged that we should have a bolder approach. Under our economy, he declared, "we wait until it can be proven that each and every dollar brings dividends. I don't think our only potential enemy proceeds that way."

Dr. Dornberger denied that there is a lack of scientists in this country. In fact, he asserted, the scientist is leading too much. We are governed too much by formulas and not by common sense, he said. "If anything looks good, practical, and feasible from a military viewpoint why not try it; why do we have to wait for years until everything has been proven scientifically?"

Also in agreement with Secretary Quarles, Dr. Dornberger denied the concept that the ICBM is the "ultimate weapon." There is no "ultimate weapon," he declared, for as long as man continues to think there will be something new coming up.

Navy Shifts Flags

RAdm. Victor D. Long, USN, Director, Logistics Plans Division, Office of the Chief of Naval Operations, succeeds RAdm. Irving T. Duke, USN, as Commander, Amphibious Group One, Pacific Fleet.

Admiral Long will take his new command at the end of March or early in April. In May, Admiral Duke is scheduled to report to the CNO for his assignment.

At the same time, RAdm. Albert E. Jarrell, USN, Commander, Amphibious Training Command, Pacific Fleet, was named Commander, Fleet Activities, Yokosuka, Japan, succeeding Capt. F. L. Tedder, USN.

Although Admiral Jarrell is moving into a post normally filled by a four-stripe officer, it is pointed out that this does not mean there will be an increase in the number of flag billets in the Navy. The post vacated by Admiral Jarrell will remain vacant for some time with the second in command acting as commander.

Retired Marines Will Get The Word

Retired Marines now have their publication containing the latest information on regular and retired Marines. The first issue of the new publication entitled "Newsletter for Retired Marines" went into the mail last week, according to the Personal Affairs Branch of Headquarters, Marine Corps.

The first issue contains an introduction which reads in part: "This newsletter will be mailed to you quarterly or as often as information warrants. The Commandant of the Marine Corps desires to maintain a closer contact with you and furnish you information that directly concerns you as a member of the Marine Corps on the retired list."

Included in the new four-page publication is information about a new retired Marines handbook; National Service Life Insurance; compensation; tax credit and numerous other important items of information.

Sec'y. Quarles Pleads For Perspective In Missile Field; Hits "Ultimate" Tag

Air Force Secretary Donald A. Quarles in closed-door testimony before the House Military Appropriations Subcommittee took issue with widely publicized statements which have hailed the Intercontinental Ballistic Missile as "an ultimate weapon." His comments on this matter as made public by the Committee, follow:

I REGARD as highly misleading, and highly damaging to our whole position here the whole line of publicity that says, "this is an ultimate weapon, that we have no defense against it;" that the first fellow that gets it is going to be on top and the rest might as well throw up their hands. That is a line of talk I deplore. I think it is unsound, and I think it is particularly unwise as a United States line, if you like, faced as we are by the possibility that somebody will say, "Why do you not throw up your hands?"

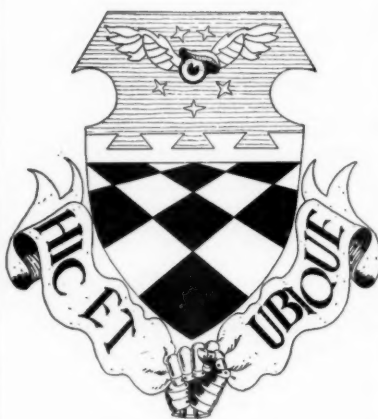

Let me explain why I think this is unsound: The Russians today have plenty of medium-range bombers that have all the bases in Europe that we are talking about within their range, and that have the capability of delivering atomic bombs against bases with more precision than we expect them to have with a ballistic missile for some time to come. Therefore, they know and we know that the mere addition to their arsenal of a 1,500 mile missile to do the same job would not materially affect the balance of power between the two blocs. They know and we know that until they have an effective means of knocking out our retaliatory power before it can get off the ground they do not have a sound basis for starting a war. And they know that the addition of even an intercontinental of any accuracy that they are apt to have within the next decade will be only a marginal advantage to them over their bomber force and not a completely new and revolutionary thing.

Moreover, we know that we will have B-52 bombers, that can do a better job for sometime to come than anybody can hope to do with missiles of any kind. We will also have air-breathing guided missiles that will have range and precision and load-carrying capacity at least equal to the ballistic missile, if not better, and some of those will be so difficult to intercept that I would expect their ability to get through within the next 10 years to be comparable, though not equal, to the ballistic missile.

The point that I am making then is that we have gotten this thing completely out of perspective. We have scared our people to death about something that is, to be sure, a horrifying weapon; but it does not kill you any deadlier than a bomber does with an atomic bomb; and nobody is going to start a war because they have this kind of weapon unless they can see a way out that will avoid destruction to themselves, and the addition of this weapon to their arsenal whether or not we then have it will not avoid destruction to themselves.

So I just want to say in discussing this whole field, and the high priority that we have put on it, we are recognizing it as a very potent addition to our arsenal, but we are not recognizing it as a weapon that will revolutionize warfare, whichever side gets it first.

"HERE AND EVERYWHERE" is the motto embellished on the new emblem of the 54th Reconnaissance Technical Squadron at Offutt AFB, Neb. The Winged Hawk Eye symbolizes detailed intelligence search and interpretation from aerial reconnaissance and observation; the five stars representing the five missions of the squadron; the Walled Battlement illustrating national defense; the checkered field portraying the earth's surface; and the Mailed Fist, which is a part of the SAC crest, denotes the 54th as the premier recon tech squadron of SAC. The emblem was designed by M/Sgt. Conway J. Jocks of the Photo-Mapping Section in the squadron and has been approved by Headquarters USAF.

READY FOR B-52

The 45th Air Division's Commander, Brig. Gen. William K. Martin, USAF, 40, has completed the two week B-47 transition course at Lockbourne AFB, Ohio, which is preparing all B-36 pilots for intensified training in the B-52 bomber.

General Martin returned to Loring AFB, Me., with the crew he worked with at Lockbourne. His next step will be B-52 training at Castle AFB, Calif.

The 45th Air Division commands the 42d Bomb Wing at Loring, which will soon be converted from B-36 to the B-52.

Army Generals Move

MAJ. GEN. PETER C. HAINS, 3d, USA, formerly Chief of Military Assistance in Yugoslavia, has replaced BRIG. GEN. WILLIAM M. BRECKINRIDGE, USA, ordered to Europe, as Fourth Army CofS at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., under LT. GEN. J. H. COLLIER, USA.

MAJ. GEN. JOHN J. BINNS, USA, who had commanded the 5th Armored Division at Camp Chaffee, Ark., is the new CofS for AFCE and Eighth Army, under GENERAL I. D. WHITE, USA, succeeding MAJ. GEN. JOHN W. HARMONY, USA, recently named Chief of the Joint Military Assistance Advisory Group (Provisional) in Korea.

BRIG. GEN. DAVID W. TRAUB, USA, has arrived at Ft. Hood, Tex., from Tokyo duty at J-5 for the FEC and U.N. Command and has taken command of Fourth Armored Division Artillery.

BRIG. GEN. HUGH MACKINTOSH, USA, former Com. Gen., Columbus General Depot, Ohio, has been appointed Assistant Quartermaster General for Administration and Services, vice COL. RAY J. LAUX, USA, who has been appointed Assistant Quartermaster General for Materiel effective upon the departure of COL. THAD BROOM, USA, for the Far East Command. COL. DAVE J. COOK, USA, has been appointed Acting Assistant Quartermaster General for Materiel during the temporary absence of Colonel Laux who has been assigned to temporary duty at Harvard University.

Colonel Broom will succeed BRIG. GEN. HERBERT A. HALL, USA, as Quartermaster, Far East Command.

General Hall, who suffered a mild stroke on 20 Dec. 1955, while on a routine inspection trip in Korea, and later was hospitalized at the Army General Hospital in Tokyo, has been relieved from duty as Quartermaster, Far East Command, and transferred to Walter Reed Army General Hospital, Washington, D. C., for observation and treatment.
